Says Nixon against investigation

Helms confirms memo

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate committee was told today that former White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman told CIA officials "it is the President's wish" that the CIA approach the FBI to discourage an investigation related to the Watergate case.

Richard Helms, former CIA director, confirmed to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that the statement was made in a memo by his deputy director, Lt. Gen. Vernon Walters, following a meeting between Walters and acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray.

The memo was first disclosed at an open hearing by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., concerning a meeting on June 23, 1972 at the White House involvings Walters, Helms, Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman.

Symington said that in the memo furnished only last Saturday to the Senate Armed Services Committee, Walters reported that Haldeman turned to Walters and said, "It is the President's wish that you go to see Mr. Gray."

Helms said he was in the room but does not recall on his own whether Haldeman used the President's authority specifically.

Helms did say, however, that when instructions are from the White House chief of staff, it is assumed that it had adequate authority behind it.

Helms testified that he did not at the time know about any money that might have been "laundered" through Mexico.

He said he did not understand "to this day" why Haldeman selected Walters, rather than Helms himself, to make the approach to Gray to inform the FBI that pursuit of its investigation of the Mexican angle of the Watergate affair might jeopardize CIA covert operations in Mexico.

Helms said he himself felt no concern about such a point and tried to modify the approach to Gray in a subsequent conversation with Walters.

Helms said he told Walters it would be proper to inform the new FBI director of an operating arrangement between the CIA and the FBI that when any investigations overlapped, the other agency should be notified.

Helms said that his sole concern at the time was that the CIA should be kept out of the Watergate affair entirely.

Helms said he does not know if his reluctance to have the CIA involved in Watergate played a role in his abrupt departure as CIA chief.

He said the reasons for his departure were contained in a conversation he had with President Nixon. He said Watergate was not brought up in that conversation but that the restraints of executive privilege bar him from saying what he discussed with the President.

"Frankly, I wanted to stay as head of the agency to continue to keep it out," Helms said.

He told the committee, "I did not know" whether his refusal to cooperate with the White House in domestic affairs was responsible for his new assignment as ambassador to Iran.

The committee session was abruptly opened to the press and public after Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., said news articles pointing out apparent conflicts in what Helms told the committee in February and what he now says are tantamount to "perjury."

5 arrested for possession of marijuana

CHAFFEE — Five men were arrested for possession of marijuana after being stopped by the highway patrol and Chaffee police.

Robert Dudley of Chaffee and Danny Householder of Allenville, formerly of Sikeston, were in the Scott County jail this morning unable to post $300 bond. The other three, Rocky Schultz, Robert Smiley and Doyle Hendrix, all of Chaffee, were released on bond.

The men were reportedly stopped for a traffic violation.

5 arrested for beatings

BENTON — Frank Hutson and Allen Lancaster of Oran were arrested Sunday for felonious assault following the beating of John Todt, 21, of Oran.

The men allegedly attacked Todt with a baseball bat Saturday night, the Scott County sheriff's department said.

Todt was admitted to Chaffee General Hospital at 2:30 a.m. Sunday.

Three men were arrested today for the assault and robbery of Sterling Duncan, 48, of Chaffee early this morning. The names of the three men were not released.

The sheriff's office said the three left Al's Tavern in Chaffee Sunday night with Duncan after he alledgedly told them he wanted to go somewhere and that he had the money if they had the car.

Duncan was found this morning in a ditch near the George Stephenson farm near Benton. He had been beaten and stripped of his clothes.

Duncan was taken to Chaffee General Hospital where is is reported in fair condition.

The Sheriff's office arrested three youths Friday night for vandalism after they were spotted sawing down stop signs at the intersection of Salcedo and Brown Spur roads.

The sheriff's office arrested Bill Britt, 412 E. Kathleen; Brad Gilliland, 317 Hardin; and Fred Cauthorn, 313 Illinois Ave.

Deputies said they had already sawed down one sign and were in the process of sawing down another when they were seen by a passerby who notified the sheriff's office.

They were released on bonds of $100 each.

"The press must do more

TERRORISM MUST BE CURBED

In one of his final acts before his ill-fated departure as Acting Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, L. Patric Gray wisely instructed his staff to "research thoroughly all FBI jurisdictional responsibilities which could be affected by terrorist acts," and announced that special law enforcement conferences on terrorism would be sponsored by the FBI this year, at the FBI academy.

"Terrorists the world over know," said Mr. Gray in a message to all law enforcement officials, "that fear breeds terror. And with terror comes destruction of the human spirit and a loss of determination to oppose the sources of terror."

Mr. Gray further pointed out that while widely publicized terrorist acts have occurred abroad, "we can take no comfort in the notion that terrorism is foreign bred. We have our own ugly brand of terrorists. They have taken a tragic toll of lives from among our own ranks. In recent years, terrorist snipers, self- styled guerrillas, and ambush assassins have murdered law enforcement officers in growing numbers.

"With the rising threat of terrorism, the law enforcement profession should take a fresh look at its capability to combat it. Those of us with leadership responsibilities must insure that our investigations, training, and equipment are more than adequate to meet this challenge."

Mr. Gray's words, we believe, are wise and timely. We hope that the new Director of the FBI, whoever he may be, will follow through and vigorously pursue the plan to beef up the skills of law enforcement agencies and officers towards combatting this evil.

Terrorism must be curbed, and now.

BROKEN BODIES —
BROKEN MINDS —
BROKEN HEARTS

Of all the despicable creatures in this world, we believe the most evil, the most foul is the man or woman who sells illegal drugs to anyone, worst of all to young people. How low can a person get when, for money, he destroys the minds and bodies of human beings, renders them helpless and incapable of a useful life, and breaks the hearts and lives of their parents and loved ones.

Murder, to many, is the unforgivable crime. Surely this is the worst possible form of murder, and should be treated accordingly.

For years Warner & Swasey has been urging less spending. Now for once we urge more spending — and effective spending — to wipe out this horrible national disease and the people who are responsible for it and condone it.

There are those who will say this is none of the business of a manufacturer of machine tools and machinery, but what future is there for any business, how solvent is any nation where young people are going bankrupt by the tens of thousands?

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

The honeymoon is really over when a husband can kiss his wife without losing his train of thought.

The only difference between a love nest and a jail is that both inmates get to keep keys to the place.

If you meet a man with one arm shorter than the other, you can bet he probably broke it during his growing years. A break at that time will often leave a shortened arm.

There's nothing less rewarding than scratching a bald head.

The easiest way to make an enemy of a fat man is to pat him on the stomach every time you meet him. He rightly regards it as an act of condescension and superiority.

It isn't true that people talk about the weather but do nothing about it. They did do something about it: they invented air conditioning. The two things that people actually talk the most about and do the least about are sex and taxes.

The majority of people aren't evil. They aren't particularly set on destroying the other fellow. They just don't want him to get in their way. If he doesn't do that, they won't usually go to the trouble of trying to cut him down.

After 50, an overweight woman spends more time worrying about her feet than about men.

Morale is always at its lowest point in a factory or office in which the employes get more fun out of the work they duck than the work they do.

One of the things I've always wanted to see but never have is for a man to light up and smoke a big four-bit cigar during a funeral service.

One of the people I've always wanted to meet is a fellow who as a kid actually brought a live frog to school and put it down the back of the little girl seated at the desk in front of him. This never happened at any school I ever went to.

Men are letting women influence the way they dress so much lately — flowery shirts, fancier ties, higher heeled shoes — that soon some of them will probably start wearing lacy socks with ruffles at the top. This isn't just a prediction — it's a conviction.

An old-timer is a man who can remember when the motto of womanhood was "death before dishonor." Most of the people under 30 today don't know what the phrase means.

NATION BUIDLERS

Strange as it may seem, one of the more inspiring periods of the year is the time when thousands of U. S. corporations submit their annual report to stockholders. Nowhere in the world, much less in communist countries where all productive enterprise is the property of the state, is there such an outpouring of testimony to the achievement of private initiative.

In recent years, a significant facet of corporation reports has been the growing ranks of companies to pass the bench mark of 100 years of operation. One such annual report is particularly interesting. It comes from a section of the country that a century ago was little more than an Indian inhabited wilderness. It tells of the amazing accomplishments of a Denver, Colorado, based electric and gas utility Company that was founded on the western reaches of the great plains where Denver stands today. Ten years after the Colorado gold rush had died out, and seven years before Colorado became a state, a group of business leaders incorporated the first gas utility in the Colorado Territory. As the company's report states, "First came the need, then came the fulfillment, followed by expansion, development, research." And as the report goes on to show, the development of this one company over the past 100 years has been nothing less than phenomenal. And, it has all been the work of private citizens, voluntary investment and imaginative management.

In the light of the records made by pioneering companies such as this, it gets a little tiresome to hear the continued warbling from the admirers and advocates of more government in every phase of our lives. The investor - owned electric industry of the United States has had more than its quota of this kind of interference.

SECRET OF

Even the largest and most essential business organizations usually started as one- man operations. Occasionally, the story of one of these early enterprises comes to light in an Address or a magazine article, and we gain fascinating glimpses into the early history of United States industrial development.

A short while ago, the president of the Arixona Public Service Company described the early beginnings of that company and the growth of the region in which it operates today. It is a story of people, power and progress of dramatic dimensions. Arizona Public Service was started by an imaginative Japanese gentlemen by the name of Hachiro Onuki in 1886. The company he build was called the Phoenix Illuminating Gas and Electric Company. At that time, Phoenix was a pioneer desert community. Apache Indians still roamed the area. A dozen street lamps constituted the principal business of the local utility.

In the more than 80 years since Arizona Public Service first introduced utility service in Phoenix, the company, like other investor - owned power utilities, has steadily expanded to meet the soaring needs of its customers. Its territory now covers about 50,000 square miles. It serves 240 communities, including Phoenix, with a population of 546,000 people. During the 1970's, the company's investments in plant and equipment will reach more than $1 billion. Its record of reliability stands at about 99.97 per cent.

A review of the history of a company like this reveals the secret of U. S. greatness. It shows how private citizens through imaginative, voluntary action, under the stimulus of the profit motive, can move ahead toward ever- greater accomplishments -- even to finding solutions to the gravest environmental problems.

BEHIND ALLENDE
AND ITT

While we must admit that we have held no brief for such dealings with hostile countries.

What few critics who cite the ITT files mention is that they document certain facts which President Allende, elected by less than 40 per cent of the vote, has failed to deny.

For example: that the Soviet Embassy coordinated all of Allende's post election activities; that Allende sent a representative to a Chilean newspaper to threaten the burning of its facilities and assassination of those who would not knuckle under; that members of Allende's party travelled periodically to Havanana to receive money and instructions; that numerous agents of Castro's secret police in Santiago were organizing paramilitary groups with the help of Allende's party.

Allende offered the ITT files as proof of ITT and American intervention. Under the rules of law governing evidence, he was therefore bound to those parts of the files which documented his own complicity in accepting the intervention of the Soviet Union and Castro's Cuba. Yet those who attack ITT for its efforts in preventing Chile from becoming a second Communist bastion in the Western Hemisphere completely ignore the case made by the files against Allende.

STATE VETERANS
DAY -- NOV. 11

Under the Truman Day bill passed by the Missouri House and awaiting a Senate vote, Veterans Day for state employes would be changed from the current federal date (fourth Monday in October) to its old date, Nov. 11. The change is an excellent idea.

Congress, in its infatuation with providing moree three-day weekends for votes, several years ago changed the dates of Washington's Birthday, Memorial Day, Columbus Day and Veterans Day. Ever since, Veterans Day has been reated more like a third vacation day than a day to honor our 28,250,000 living veterans and millsion of dead ones.

Like New Year's Day or Independence Day, Veterans Day is tied to a specific day in time or history — in this case, Nov. 11, 1918, when the armistice ending World War I was signed. The date had been traditional since then.

The 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month has special meaning for millions of people. As one observer said, "It wasn't because of any feat of arms that Veterans Day was shifted to October. It was done for convenience, to set up another lost weekend... The general idea is to honor the vet by giving bankers, government girls and your friendly stoke broker an opportunity to knock off work.

Some veteran's groups have the right idea — they ignore the fourth Monday in October and continue to solemnly observe Nov. 11. Nationally, some congressmen, including the respected Republican House Minority Whip Leslie Arends of Illinois and New York Democrat Samuel Stratton, have been trying to restore Nov. 11 to its rightful date as Veterans Day.

Missouri will take a commendable lead if the bill passes for state workers — a lead that should be followed by every nonfederal employer, union and worker in the state.

STEEL MODULE
HOME COMMUNITY
PLANNED

A new planned community of 183 single - family factory - fabricated steel homes is being developed as a part of a 100-acre residential complex near Canton, Ohio, Republic Steel Corp. has announced. The company, in a joint venture with local developers, Raymond N. Malcolm and William C. Mattevi, is employing the concept of planned unit development.

Called the Perry Hills Colony, the housing complex will be zoned as a total site rather than as individual lots of uniform size. Cluster housing is then used to create commonuse land and still maintain individual privacy. The single homes are to be moderately priced and are grouped along cul de sac streets or along looped, winding roads. About 30 per cent of the land is to be preserved and the natural ecology protected.

With the area will be garden apartments, town houses and a small shopping complex. The latter, situated along a major highway, will act as a buffer zone between traffic and residential sections.

The Republic home uses galvanized and pre-painted steel sandwich panels and components, which lend themselves to efficient erection on site, according to the builders.

SPRING AND FRESH

Despite a severe winter the wonders of spring are prevailing and shaping a new landscape and rekindling the warmth of man's heart. It's a glorious season when the thoughts of all of us turn to love. Family picnics and outings are again in vogue. Our family enjoyed one in Oklahoma just recently.

It is that time of the year when windows can be raised and a breath of fresh air welcomed. It is a good time to reflect, too. The gentle warmth of spring air may breathe new life into those long neglected New Year's resolutions. One of those resolutions most important to me is a rededication to applying my thoughts and strength to the betterment of Republic USA. It is worthy resolution that I am sure millions share.

There are so many things that all of us can do, like supporting our law enforcement officers, urging our leaders to strengthen our defenses against our enemies, rededicating ourselves to our families and churches and preserving our Republic and the profit- motive system, the most productive one in history. It can be done under our wonderful Constitution. Ours is a society of freedom and we should give thanks for it.

It is the season when the glories of Spring should reflect in our minds and our hearts. This is a lovely season in a lovely land. Nature's glories transcend all else at this time of the year. HLH

Inside Mafia:
FBI Has 'Most Valuable Informer Since Valachi'

NEWYORK— Every special "desk" in the FBI, the Justice Dept's Criminal Division and its Organized Crime and Racketeering Section is operative. It would be more than a pity if these were deadened by the political strychnine of gossip, by leakage of files and the chilling silence of informers terrorized by the thought of these forces remaining in the hands of nonprofessional, albeit clean and earnestly intentioned, amateurs.

It would be more than a pity because the Mafia would stop running. And running it is because the FBI has infiltrated it, cracked it and is inexorably smashing it, containing it and averting new bloodbaths.

For example, one of the nation's topmost and toughest racket- busters told a friend the other day that the FBI now has reached inside the Mafia and has come away with "the most valuable informer since Joe Valachi, who broke some 10 years ago."

"We're wrapping up the (Russell) Bufalino family," said this official source. "We have a 'family' member talking, and this is the most significant thing for us since Valachi spilled. It hasn't been noticed yet except in the Western New York area. But this fellow has flipped and is ready to testify in a series of cases. This will lead us to other 'families.'"

The grim reference is to one Joseph Zito, Sr., in the alleged family of the virtually unknown Russ Bufalino, among whose specialties was selling labor peace. Sort of an enforcer.

There are other Mafiosi splitting, singing, turning in and ready to take the witness stand against the combine. Those already talking to FBI special agents who are expert in the use of "the stomach pump" (working with defectors) are turning the vise on the veterans of the old Murder, Inc.- Cosa Nostra chieftains.

In this grim rogues' gallery are men ranging all the way from the late Vito Genovese to the dainty 73- year- old Meyer Lansky. This computer-brained elder of ancient New York killer gangs has survived open- heart surgery. His ulcers act up a bit from time to time and he may have them bleed to prevent his standing trial July 9 in Miami. But the federal doctors say he's in fine shape.

But more about this dean of the prohibition era "Bugs and Meyer" mob later. It's Zito who fascinates the Justice Dept.'s high command. If he talks (or has already talked) about the Bufalino family and its connections, as did the late gravel- voiced Joe Valachi, Zito could lead to such Bufalino friends as the late Vito Genovese, the orignal boss of bosses of national crime syndicates.

And this could lead to what's left of the so- called Mafia national commission. Bufalino reportedly had good working connections with such alleged Mafia bosses as the late Tommy (Three Fingers Brown) Luchese; Philadelphia's Angelo Bruno; and the suddenly amazingly spry latter- day alleged boss of bosses, Carlo Gambino.

Thus, the FBI's organized crime specialists are on the cliffhanger of a national breakthrough. Eventually they will give Zito a "safe house." Others will be encouraged to "flip."

If this happens, the crime fighters can crack the remaining tough mob families in New York. Thus the toughest mob underpinning will be smashed. Already the family of Joe Colombo, who is now a living vegetable, is spilling its organizational guts.

There's little left of its high command. Reportedly it is being held together by a waterfront character, Tommy Di Bella. So freakish is this control he lives isolated in Staten Island (one of New York's harbor boroughs). Di Bella holds title as caretaker only because he is an old friend of the late Profaci and Magliocco crowd. Joe Profaci was so powerful a Mafia boss that two of this land's most hosted crooners flew secretly to his wake in Brooklyn some years ago. True they flew late at night, but one is real comfortable aboard one's own plane.

The FBI also has cracked the old New England mob led by the imprisoned Patriarca, of racket- ridden Providence, R.I. He, too, was cracked by informers. From the inside.

One of those who gave up his all is big Vinnie Teresa--- never actually a Mafia member, he made so much money on gambling operations he just didn't want to join and be disciplined. His father and uncle were inside. So he was trusted. And he was part of the courier system which skimmed all that cash to and for Meyer Lansky--- whom some believe still is the Mr. Big of organized crime in the U.S.--- the Mafia notwithstanding.

Big Vinnie will be among the star witnesses against Meyer when he goes to trial in Miami on or about July 9. Basic Internal Revenue Service charge against Lansky has it that he took some $95,000 in cash from IOUs paid by gambling junketeers who lost their money in London's old Colony Club. This is not to be confused with another set of charges that he skimmed vast sums from the gambling tables of Las Vegas's famed Flamingo Hotel.

There will be other strange and mysterious witnesses. Package all this and you have the first chance to crack the inner structure of the Murder, Inc.- industrial rackets- Mafia combine which has been picking up political power and billions of dollars in the past 50 years. It could end a half century of terror, extortion, brutalizing of labor and management, terrorizing of contractors and merchants.

What I've reported above is the barest slit of curtain-raising possible. All these are on- going investigations, trial preparations, nursing of tough but skitterish informers who actually come from action right inside the blood brotherhood--- not like Joe Valachi whose oral history makes fabulous reading but brought no convictions.

So, only the crime combine can profit from delaying the return to normalcy and professional leadership of the FBI, Justice Dept. and its racket- smashing corps.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Vesco's Financial Finagling And Two Presidential Families

WASHINGTON — The international financial finagler, Robert Vesco, believes that the way to a politician's heart is through his pocketbook. In both the United States and Costa Rica, he has tried to buy his way into the good graces of Presidents Richard Nixon and Jose Figueres themselves.

The approach was through their families. In the United States, Vesco cozied up to the President's wheeling- dealing brother, Donald Nixon, whose son has been sharing the good life with the financier as his personal aide. We have been reporting on the strange relationship between Vesco and the Nixons since February 16, 1972.

To gather the facts and gain access to the President's brother, my associate George Clifford posed as a businessman. He found Donald Nixon an irrepressible operator who talked incessantly about business deals and winked knowlingly to emphasize the significance of what he was saying.

A typical remark: "Don't overlook the possibility of trade with China. And with Russia," he said, winking. "There is opportunity there. Someone has to do business with them."

YOUNG DON

Nixon also confided that John Ehrlichman, the deposed White House aide, talked to Donald Jr. about his job with Vesco. Apparently, the boy was something of a disappointment to the family. He had been in the mountains, said the father, associating with hippies.

"That dumb b-----," Don Nixon said of his son. "John Ehrlichman talked to him for a couple of hours and told him he had to behave himself over there (with Vesco). You know, he told him he was the President's nephew and couldn't do anything to embarrass the President."

Just as Vesco sought out Donald Nixon, the financier also zeroed in on President Jose Figueres' family, including his son Marti. A secret CIA report, made available to us, quotes the President's nephew, Fernando Figueres, as saying the family business enterprises were "doing poorly."

"Fernando Figueres, who manages some of the President's businesses, said that he personally has asked to be allowed to resign because of these financial difficulties," notes the CIA. "he commented that all the members of the President's family are deeply concerned with family financial matters and the fact that the President does not seem to be able to administer his business enterprises profitably."

'OBSESSED'

Still another source close to the respected Costa Rican President quoted him as saying "that his financial situation was very bad. (The source) indicated that Figueres seemed obsessed with his financial problems."

The situation was made to order for Vesco, who has been accused by the Securities and Exchange Commission of looting $224 million from his foreign - based investment complex and moving the money to Costa Rica and the Bahamas.

The finagler ingratiated himself with Figueres by helping to solve some of his financial problems. The greatful Figueres wrote to President Nixon last July about the SEC investigation of Vesco, expressing concern that it might jeopardize Costa Rica's development.

Now that Vesco is under indictment in the United States, it has been hinted he may give up his U. S. citizenship and make Costa Rica his new home. Figueres has made it clear this would be fine with him. The CIA has made it clear this would also be fine for him.

WATERGATE WHISPERS: Sources close to ex-Attorney General John Mitchell say he kept a secret record of the favors he was expected to perform for big campaign contributors. This diary, if it still exists, never was submitted with the papers the grand jury subpoenaed ... They may deny it in public, but in the secrecy of the Senate Republican cloakroom, such GOP stalwarts as Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater, Kansas Sen. Bob Dole and Colorado Sen. Peter Dominick have been talking favorably of impeaching President Nixon. Grumped Goldwater: "Tricky Dick has pulled his last trick"...

The White House announced the President was dropping Herb Kalmbach as his personal attorney, but no one notified Kalmbach. He still has the President's legal files ... Throughout all the talk about a special prosecutor, the regular prosecutors went ahead doggedly with their investigation. Attorney General- designate Elliot Richardson never inquired about the case ... Ex- White House counsel John Dean, who helped the White House in its attempts to discredit others, is now getting the same treatment. We have confirmed his complaint that the White House is digging up dirt on him ...

Common Cause has been busy shooting down rumors that it plans a lawsuit to overturn the 1972 presidential elections because of the Watergate scandal. Some members had raised the question, but it never got beyond the talking stage ... William Ruckelshaus, the acting FBI director, may not have been kidding when he suggested to the press that he won't be around for long. He has been quoted by intimates as saying President Nixon "is an Archie Bunker in a business suit" ... The Nixon Administration is so short of talent in the wake of Watergate that officials are doubling up on jobs. Prize for the broadest job- straddling probably goes to management consultant Joseph Wright who is both acting assistant commerce secretary and assistant agriculture secretary, all for the same $36,000 a year.

Tinnin gains approval to move brucellosis bill

JEFFERSON CITY—Sen. Nelson B. Tinnin of Hornersville announced today that he has gained the approval of the Senate to move the brucellosis bill from the bottom of the calendar for earlier consideration due to the urgency of the bringing the state into conformity with federal guidelines.

Tinnin said the urgency in enactment of Senate bill 291 regarding brucellosis, an infectious, parasitic disease in animals, is due to the fact that the state must proceed from the control to the eradication phase of the disease. The national goal is to eradicate Brucellosis by 1980 and he said the present brucellosis law would make it possible for Missouri to achieve its goal.

However, he said, present state law does not conform with the recommended uniform methods and rules guides for the national brucellosis eradication program. This non-conformity puts our state programs in a precarious position with the federal people and could be cut out of their budget, said Tinnin.

Present Missouri laws and regulation make it difficult to maintain present status Tinnin said. Loss of status would prohibit interstate movements of breeding animals, and Missouri is the number one producer of purebred breeding animals, Tinnin said.

Tinnin says many millions of state and federal dollars have been spent on area testing to reach the present goal and Missouri must move forward to eradication of brucellosis.

It is already a fact that slaughter swine must originate from brucellosis-free areas to move to a state, Tinnin said. Missouri cannot afford to lose her interstate markets just because it failed to provide for the eradication of brucellosis. Therefore, he says it is imperative that Senate Bill 291 be enacted during the current legislative session.

Tinnin said the bill will aid many farmers of the state by permitting a higher payment for condemned cattle as reactors to brucellosis disease, commonly known as "Bangs Disease", which has caused an economic loss to too many cattlemen over the state.

The bill also permits a more equitable payment to be made by those farmers who have their cattle now condemned for slaughter. The payment is made from state funds and matched by federal funds.

4 injured as result of weekend traffic accidents

Four persons were injured in four area traffic accidents over the weekend, according to the highway patrol.

Edwin Krajecki, 55, of Benton Harbor, Mich., was injured at 10 a.m. Saturday when he came up behind a car stopped in the westbound lane of Highway 60 one-half mile east of Charleston, applied his brakes and slid his car into the path of an eastbound tractor-trailer truck driven by Thomas Benedict Organek, 28, of Ellsworth, Mich.

Krajecki's right shoulder was injured and he was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

Frank R. Blaha, 28, of Berwyn, Ill., suffered minor head cuts at 3:15 p.m. Saturday when he lost control of his car on wet pavement, ran off the road and overturned three miles easy of Wyatt on Highway 60.

He received minor head cuts and was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

An accident at 4 a.m. Sunday seven miles south of Hayti on Highway 60 resulted in one injury.

Abraham Moore, 42, of Chicago received a possible broken arm when the driver of the car in which he was a passenger lost control of the car, ran off the right side of the road, swerved across the center line and struck the trailer wheels of a tractor-trailer truck driven by Charles S. Hardy, 40, of Philadelphia, Miss.

Moore was taken to Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital in Hayti. The driver of the car, Ruth Moore, 38, was not injured.

A pedestrian, Nelly Kelley, 59, of Bragg City was injured at 1:30 p.m. Sunday on Route J one mile west of Deering when she was struck by a car on Route J one mile west of Deering.

The car, a small green model, struck the pedestrian on the south side of the highway and left the scene. Witnesses said the car had previous damage on the left side and received damage to the front from the impact of hitting the pedestrian.

Mrs. Kelley was taken to Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital with cuts and bruises.

Senate passes lower loans for disaster struck farmers

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The U. S. Senate has unanimously passed an amendment sponsored by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton (D-Mo.) which would require the Farmers Home Administration to make disaster loans to farmers at 1% interest rates with $5,000 forgiveness if the disaster occurred before April 20, 1973.

This amendment would place FHA loan allocations on an even footing with the Small Business Administration's practice.

In addition, in a colloquy between Sen. Eagleton and Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III (D-Ill.), it was made clear that the 1% loans would apply to all farmers who suffered damage in the recent flooding of thyMississippi River, even those hit by the second wake of the flood which occurred after April 20.

Prior to the Eagleton Amendment farmers in flooded areas of Missouri and elsewhere in the Mississippi River Valley were receiving only 5% loans from the FHA with no forgiveness provision, while small businessmen in the very same areas benefited from 1% loans from the Small Business Administration with the first $5,000 forgiven.

Eagleton pointed out that the SBA was distributing loans to homeowners and businessmen under the previous law while the FHA was granting loans to farmers under the new, and less generous, disaster loan law enacted April 20, 1973.

The Missouri Senator noted that at the time of the passage of the new disaster program in April it was the intent of Congress that loans should be allocated under the terms of the old law for disasters occurring before April 20.

Eagleton said that a study from the Library of Congress Law Division substantiated the argument that it was the intent of Congress to place both agencies under the same rules for disaster assistance.

"Unfortunately," Eagleton said, "that intent was not realized in practice. The final language of the statute, while very clear with respect to SBA loans, left the provision on FHA vague and subject to interpretation.

"My amendment today clarified this once and for all. It corrects an intolerable siutation which was contrary to the intent of the Senate and which was unfair to the farmer."

What's the Law?

The case of the big splash

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Albert was a yachtsman but he shouldn't have been a scuba diver. He took a taxicab to a pier one dark and rainy night, and he ended up in the drink. The driver pulled onto the pier and stopped with the right side of his vehicle only one foot away from the edge of the planking. The result: When Albert stepped out of the taxi, the only thing that separated him from the water 20 feet below was air. And needless to say, Albert made a big splash.

When finally fished out of the drink, Albert sued the taxicab company for his unexpected baptism.

"Stopping the cab one foot from the edge of the pier was pure carelessness," charged Albert in court. "I nearly ended up in Davey Jones' Locker."

"What's he want from us?" responded the attorney for the cab company. "It was a dark and rainy night. Before Albert got out of the taxi he should have looked where he was going. Besides, once he stepped out, he was no longer a passenger and our responsibility. He was on his own."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the cab company liable for Albert's big splash?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that a taxicab company owes its passengers a high degree of care. And, he added, that responsibility does not terminate until the passenger has alighted from the cab and has had a reasonable opportunity to reach a place of safety. In this case, concluded the court, Albert was discharged at the brink of disaster.

Ann Landers

Neighbor doesn't keep clean dishes

Dear Ann Landers: Please excuse the notebook paper but I am writing this letter during study period. I am 14 and in the 9th grade. Your book, "Since You Ask Me," is in our school library and I just read it.

I saw myself on page 102. It was a letter from a mother who lived in Wisconsin. She wrote, "I wish our 14- year-old daughter would walk out of the house and never come back. She was a colicky, mean kid from the minute we brought her home from the hospital. When she was three months old she began to look like my husband's sister who was the town tramp."

Then the mother went on to tell about all the terrible things her daughter had done and she ended her letter by saying, "Please tell us what to do with this girl before she gets her picture in the paper and disgraces us."

Mom doesn't give a damn about me and I've known it ever since I was a little kid. Dad works all the time and is like a stranger. I have a sister who is 16 and very pretty. I am plain looking. Mom keeps talking about how different we look. She keeps saying, "It's hard to believe they have the same mother and father."

I have a nine- year- old brother and when Mom isn't talking about my beautiful sister, she is bragging on this smart kid who is sure to be President of the United States---at least.

I know there is nothing you can do to help me, so maybe the best thing you can do is to tell me why I wrote this letter when I know very well I am---A Born Loser.

Dear Friend: I refuse to call you a loser, because the ball game is far from finished. You are only 14 and this is only the second inning.

You wrote because you were feeling alone and depressed and wanted to unload on somebody. I'm glad you chose me. I suggest that you do some more unloading---on a school counselor. That's what they are there for. You'll be surprised at how much better you'll feel after you've verbalized your anxieties. Please go--- and let me know how it worked out.

Dear Ann Landers: I have this dear friend (I'll call her Mabel) who has a heart of gold but her housekeeping makes me sick. When I go there for a cup of coffee and a piece of cake I have trouble swallowing anything because Mabel never uses soap or hot water on her dishes or silverware. She rinses everything under the cold water faucet and dries them with a dirty dishtowel. It's enough to kill a person's appetite for a week.

Yesterday was the last straw. When I went to the kitchen to get the coffee pot, there was her big Maltese cat sleeping in the sink. I nearly fainted. Our cups, saucers and spoons were on the sideboard with the cake, ready to be served, nothing covered, just sitting right out where the cat could have walked over everything and probably did.

Should I have said something? What about the next time? How can I get away with not eating when I go to visit her? Help me, please. --- Love Her, But . . .

Dear Love: No point in saying anything. Mabel has probably been keeping house like this for years and you aren't going to change it. Tell her in advance that you'd prefer that she not serve anything because you are trying to cut down on calories and it would be a help if she didn't tempt you.

Confidential to No Prude But How Can We Stop It?' You can't. It's beyond your control' If everyone swept in front of his own front door, the whole world would be a lot cleaner. Try it.

There are 128 beaches in Jamaica that are open to everyone. The most famous beaches open to the public are Doctor's Cave in Montego Bay and Dun's River in Ocho Rios.

DAEOC begins 14th nurses aide class

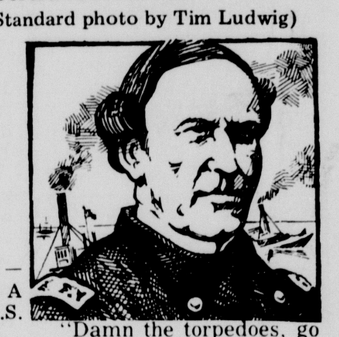
The 14th class of nurse's aide trainees, sponsored by Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation, is now in progress. The students were recruited from low- income families and training fees are paid by DAEOC.

A total of 117 persons have been enrolled in the 14 classes. Eighty- five have completed the training and have had an opportunity to work in the Missouri Delta Community Hospital or nursing homes in the Sikeston area. Eight women are members of the 14th class.

The classes are set up in cooperation with Mrs. Clare Eisenbach, supervisor of health occupations at Sikeston Vocational School, who has helped to solve problems for the trainees.

The percentage of trainees who have completed nurse's aide training has been exceptionally high.

USDA has new food guide book



WASHINGTON (AP) — True or false: A U. S. Grade A Large egg is better than a U.S. Grade A Medium egg.

"False. A large egg is bigger than a medium egg, not better. Remember, size refers to weight of the egg; the grade refers to the quality of the egg," says the Department of Agriculture.

The egg is only one food item examined in a new "How to Buy Food" lesson guide prepared for high school and adult education teachers by department experts.

In another lesson plan titled "Baa-affled About Lamb" a multiple choice question is asked: You can judge the quality of lamb by (a) pinching it, (b) the price per pound, (c) using the USDA quality grades, or (d) none of the above.

Correct answer: (c). "Each lamb grade is a measure of a distinct quality level. When a lamb carcass is graded, a purple, shield- shaped grade mark containing the letters USDA and the grade name- such as Prime or Choice - is applied."

The complete package contains 51 pages of prepared lesson guides, questions and answers, lists of supplemental materials available from USDA and even a crossword puzzle of consumer hints, with answers.

Some of the other lessons are titled, Befuddled About Beef Roasts?, Bone Up on Steak, Cold Facts About Freezing Meat, Do You Know Your Dairy Products and Poultry Problem Solving.

The handbook was more than two years in development by the Agricultural Marketing Service of USDA and also involved comments and recommendations from state departments of agriculture and teachers, officials said.

"Each lesson provides a list of basic reference material, a glossary of terms, suggestions for teaching and quizzes that may be given to students as an aid to teaching," the department said. "The publication also contains a special section on how to obtain more for your money."

Some suggestions:

—"Have students do some price comparing in the supermarket.

—"Have a recipe exchange session. Let students share their money- saving recipes and ideas for leftovers.

—"If students are not familiar with instant nonfat dry milk you may want to demonstrate its use, either by itself or as a cake ingredient, for example.

—"Familiarize students with dry beans, peas and lentils. Emphasize that these foods are excellent protein sources and good sources of iron as well."

"Damn the torpedoes, go ahead full speed!" was said by Admiral David Farragut when one of his ships sank after hitting a mine (then called torpedo) causing his fleet to halt and draw heavy fire from Confederate forts and ships, The World Almanac says. The incident occurred in Mobile harbor, Ala., in 1864, and Farragut's command turned a potential defeat into a victory.

Richland CTA honors bus drivers, teachers, Mr. and Mrs. C. Rhodes

ESSEX — At the annual meeting of the Richland Community Teachers Association May 10 at Richland High School, new officers were elected and teachers moving to new jobs or retiring were honored, as well as the school bus drivers.

Jimmie G. Lawrence, superintendent of Richland schools, introduced guests and honored members of the staff. Former Stoddard County Superintendent of Schools are Mrs. John Wright and Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Rhodes were special guests of the association. Rhodes retired at the end of the 1971-72 school year and Mrs. Rhodes at the end of this school year.

The program began with a prayer of thanks by the Rev. Doyle Carlew, elementary counselor, and was followed by a potluck dinner.

She then taught two years at North Antioch, another rural school in the Bloomfield district, then went back to West Pleasant Valley for two more years.

Mrs. Rhodes married Rhodes in 1934, and they have two daughters. Mrs. Rhodes was out of the teaching profession for 19 years while the grils were at home.

In 1963 she received a bachelor of science degree in education from Arkansas State University at Jonesbobo, Ark. Most of her college hours were through summer schools and correspondence work.

BELINDA JANE DIDN'T HUSH

LONDON (AP) — Belinda-Jane Blakeney spoiled things at a fund-raising "hush-in" at Thomas Bourne School, Berkhamstead, near London, when she politely said "thank you" for a drink. The youngsters were not supposed to speak, and they had "sponsors" who promised charity contributions that would be bigger the longer the children remained silent.

Well wishers sent in more than $120 when they read of the incident.

Budget to get most attention as legislature enters last 4 weeks

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A $2 billion state budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 is expected to get most of the attention in the Missouri Legislature this week as lawmakers begin their last four weeks of the current session.

The session, which began Jan. 3, ends June 15.

The Senate is expected to begin debate this afternoon or Tuesday on the first of eight appropriations bills that have cleared the Senate Appropriations Committee.

The first bills to be considered will be $7 million to pay off bonded indebtedness and a $500 million public education budget.

In the House, debate will continue on the last of the appropriations bills, an $87.1 million expenditure for capital improvements.

Federal revenue sharing money is earmarked for nearly all the financing of renovation and new construction.

The state's general fund (tax money) will pay for only $6.2 million. The state has about $79 million in federal revenue sharing funds and the House bill will use $71.8 million of that.

The House appropriations chairman, Rep. James "Jay" Russell, D-St. Louis, estimated the state would go into the fiscal year with $38 million in its general fund account. That figure was at $20 million this time last year.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond's proposed budget called for only $45.8 million in capital improvements, with $34.7 million coming from federal revenue sharing.

Among the biggest building projects are $6.4 million for a veterinary complex at the University of Missouri-Columbia, $8.8 million at the St. Louis State Hospital, $3.2 million at the Marshall State School and Hospital, $11.5 million for a new wing at the Ellis Fischel Cancer Hospital, and $6.4 million for a music and performing arts center at the University of Missouri-Kansas City.

Among other expenditures are $2.3 million for improvements at the St. Joseph State Hospital, $2.3 million at the Nevada State Hospital, and $2.6 million at the Farmington State Hospital.

In other action, a conference committee of five senators and five House members will begin working out a compromise between the House and Senate versions of bills to reorganize the executive branch of state government into 14 departments.

The Senate will tackle a stack of House bills awaiting final action.

At the top of the list are bills to allow the city of Nevada to lease land owned by the Nevada State Hospital, to revise the law so that the number of school days total at least nine months during a 12-month period, and to raise the daily expense allotment for legislators from $10 to $25.

Tonight, the House License Committee will consider a bill to regulate the state's ambulance services.

An antitrust law passed by the Senate will be considered Wednesday afternoon by the House Criminal Jurisprudence Committee.

Wednesday night, the House Consumer Affairs Committee will debate a Senate-passed bill raising the small loan limit from $500 to $1,000 for loans at 26 per cent interest a year.

The House bill to reinstate the death penalty comes up for discussion tonight in the Senate Criminal Justice Committee.

The Senate plans to meet all five days this week.

Eagleton and Hearnes to hold news conference

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Sen. Tom Eagleton and former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes have called a news conference this afternoon at the St. Louis Press Club to discuss the future of Missouri's Democratic party and Eagleton's re-election.

There was speculation among leading Democrats that Hearnes would announce he will not challenge Eagleton in the 1974 race.

Hearnes and other members of the state party's executive committee have been feuding over handling of a July 28 fundraising dinner and about running the party in general.

The guest speaker at the Jefferson City dinner will be Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington, whom Hearnes supported for the presidential nomination at the Democratic National Convention.

Eagleton, who supported George McGovern, was scheduled to be the master of ceremonies for the July 28 dinner, but he withdrew. U.S. Rep. James Symington will be master of ceremonies and Eagleton plans to attend the dinner.

In a news conference last week, state party chairman David Donnelly said the July 28 affair would be called a birthday dinner for Hearnes, as was the custom during the eight years Hearnes was governor.

Part of the dispute was that the executive committee preferred not to call it a birthday dinner.

Hearnes, practicing law in St. Louis and Charleston, has said he wants to keep active in politics but had no plans to run for the Senate.

Sen. Stuart Symington, a Democrat, has not said whether he will run for re-election in 1976. Symington will be 72 next month.

How to recognize and report a gas leak.

At Arkansas-Missouri Power Company we stay alert for signs of trouble. Once in a while in our hundreds of miles of pipeline there may be a gas leak. Therefore, you can help us if you recognize a gas leak and report it to us so that we can correct the problem immediately.

How to detect a gas leak:

Natural gas cannot be seen and it is odorless. However, we've added a chemical to the gas so that if it ever does leak out, you can smell a particular odor.

In case of an underground leakage, vegetation nearby sometimes becomes discolored. For example, yellow spots may appear on foliage or grass.

What to do if you suspect a leak:

If you suspect a gas leak, report the location immediately to the nearest Arkansas-Missouri Power Company office. Take care to prevent a spark.

If you suspect a leak indoors, open the doors and windows to allow the gas to escape. Call your local Arkansas-Missouri Power Company office and report the leak immediately.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Despite the Watergate scandal and public concern about political abuses, the Missouri Legislature has allowed several conflict-of-interest bills to die.

The bills would have:

—Broadened laws on campaign spending.

—Required economic disclosure statements from public officials.

—Set up an ethics commission to regulate public officials and political candidates.

—Tightened controls on lobbyists.

Of the 10 bills introduced this session, eight were in the House and Republicans are blaming the Democratic leadership for allowing the bills to be delayed and eventually struck from the calendar.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond called for passage of strong conflict-of-interest legislation both during his campaign and in his message to the legislature after taking office in January.

"We emphasized it back in January when Watergate was a dead issue," said Charles Valier, Bond's legislative assistant. He said the House leadership did "not consider it a priority item ... just didn't show any interest."

Valier said he wrote several of the bills only to see them given late committee hearings and not reported out promptly.

"I pushed Volkmer on those bills as hard as I could," he said, referring to Rep. Harold Volkmer, D-Hannibal, the chairman of the House Judiciary Committee.

Four bills called for full disclosure on campaign expenses and three would have had public officials file statements concerning their economic interests. A related bill, to require open meetings of public bodies, still has a chance for passage.

Rep. Robert O. Snyder, R-Kirkwood, the minority floor leader in the House, said election laws should be changed to list not only amounts spent but where the money came from. "Candidates are not required to report who donated that money" under present law, Snyder said.

He blames the Democrats, who control the legislature, for letting the bills die. "The party in power still shows no recognition of the public's lack of confidence in our political processes," Snyder said.

Speaker of the House Richard J. Rabbitt, D-St. Louis, said the Republicans are just "trying to take some of the heat off Watergate." He said the complainers introduced no conflictof-interest legislation.

Rabbitt said he's most concerned about campaign spending and even co-sponsored one of the bills to control it. "It's not a matter of trying to shove it under the carpet. We got to it too late," he said.

Rabbitt said at this point he and others are examining bills close to passage to see which might be amended to include controls on campaign spending. "The session isn't over yet," he said.

Al Sikes, who was Bond's campaign manager and now is director of community affairs, said last week:

"Millions of dollars are poured into campaign treasuries and lobbyist accounts to gain favor with politicians. This money is the life blood of political leaders and creates severe temptations."

Sikes called the state's Corrupt Practices Act "a sham" and said both it and the law controlling lobbyists should be overhauled.

He called for a bi-partisan commission, independent of either political party, to investigate and enforce campaign spending.

In the absence of any legislation to curb possible conflicts of interest by state officials, Gov. Bond recently announced he was instituting his own code of ethis rules in the executive branch.

Rep. James G. Baker, D-Kansas City, said although his bill to tighten the controls on lobbyists was struck from the calendar

Eagleton favors tax money used to finance campaigns

QUINCY, Ill. (AP) — Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., says he will support the use of tax money to finance national campaigns—a move, he says, that can remove elections from the influence of large private donors.

Eagleton predicted here Sunday that the Watergate affair could produce new laws of this type. He spoke to graduates of Quincy College, following a news conference.

He cautioned against cynicism about government because of the scandal. He said faith in the American system had been shaken, but Watergate should prove that the system works to rid itself of corruption.

Eagleton said if good people abandon the system it will simply be left to those who would corrupt it.

Asked about Missouri politics, he said it "can't be too soon to get the (Democratic) party together."

He repeated he is seeking reelection in 1974. Asked about reports that former Gov. Warren Hearnes might oppose him, Eagleton referred to a news conference the two have scheduled Monday in St. Louis.

Doctor speaks at meeting

LILBOURN — "Real community involvement begins with persons who are able to look out beyond their personal work, personal goals and achievements and believe that what happens to others is their business," Dr. Homan Wherritt of Kansas City, regional health director, stated Saturday at the Delmo Housing Corporation annual meeting at the community center in South Lilbourn.

Dr. Wherritt spoke about the future of family health services and what people can do to make it operate effectively.

"When you talk about what is needed to make a family health center operate effectively, I would have to say -- first of all -- is awareness of need on the part of individuals who are willing to look for ways to change things and make them better," Dr. Wherritt said.

He said that whenever he is asked to speak about the future of health care, he emphasized the fact that the whole person, his family and his community must be considered.

"The formation of the Delmo Corporation was a demonstration of first class initiative," Dr. Wherritt said.

For an effort to be successful, it must reflect the opinion of those it would serve, Dr. Wherritt told the group. "A few years ago we made that a must of federal grants. You predated us by an embarrassing number of years and had consumer representation on your board from the first," he said.

Wherritt said that it is refreshing to find bureaucratic phrases in operation.

"When one adds to your successful migrant health project, the work camps, scholarship program, small loan project and your research and demonstration project in mental retardation, there is continuing evidence of concern and capability," Dr. Wherritt told the group.

"Everything important to the delivery of health services, whether we are talking about family health centers or a system of health care called something else, is actively present here in this community -- in fact, in this room," Dr. Wherritt said.

As decentralization takes effect, the role of the regional office will be strengthened, but the plan is to give the responsibility for health care to the states, he stated.

"The future of any health system, whether it is family health, emergency health, or whatever, will necessitate even stronger ties with the regional office," Dr. Wherritt added.

"The best plan is the one that is flexible and anticipates change," he continued.

He concluded by saying that he hopes that the fruits of research can be combined with a workable delivery system. He encouraged the Delmo Corporation to continue everything it is currently doing.

A short business meeting was held before Dr. Wherritt spoke, featuring reports from the various committees, programs and services.

Following Dr. Wherritt's remarks, area and Delmo village reports were presented. Mayor J. W. Shavers and Priscella Hill, president of the Women's Club, reported on Homestown. Reports were also heard from Mayor T. L. Clark and Callene McWilliams on North Lilbourn, Lavern Beck, Morehouse; Beaulah Montgomery, North Wardell; Mayor Lommie Lane and Carry Pollard, Wilson City; Rodia Nelson, Gobler; Vergie Bullington, Circle City; and Pauline Campbell, from East Prairie.

Alex A. Cooper gave the Delmo directors report and Mrs. Clementine Thomas reported on North Lilbourn's Head Start program.

Freeze Queen is burglarized

HOWARDVILLE — The Freeze Queen on Highway 61, operated by Bessie Cole, was burglarized Sunday night and an undetermined amount of money was stolen from coin machines.

A side door was broken open to gain entry.

2 arrested

CHARLESTON — Two arrests were reported by police during the weekend. Henry Swope, 42, of Charleston, charged with public intoxication, was fined $33 in City Court this morning. James Anthony Hall, 20, of Charleston forfeited a $25 bond for careless and reckless driving.

In City Court Saturday, L. C. Clark, 29, of Charleston was fined $108 on a driving while intoxicated charge; Napolean Emanuel Jr., 17, of East Prairie, careless and imprudent driving, was fined $17; and Kenneth D. Coots, 50, of Sikeston forfeited a $125 bond for driving while intoxicated.

Leslie Achter found guilty

CHARLESTON — A jury of 10 men and two women deliberated only 18 minutes Friday before returning a guilty verdict against Leslie Allen Achter of East Prairie on charges of burglary and stealing.

Judge Stanley Grimm, circuit judge of Bollinger and Cape Girardeau counties, sentenced Achter, who was tried under the habitual criminal act, to 10 years on the burglary charge and five years on the stealing charge with the sentences to run consecutively.

Achter was convicted of burglarizing the home of Bobby Wayne Johnson near Anniston on Dec. 20, 1972, and stealing a shotgun, electric razor, guitar and table cigarette lighter.

Witnesses called by Prosecuting Attorney W. Clifton Banta Jr. included Johnson, Highway patrolmen Norris Grissom, Jerry Crismon and Benny Rapert, Jim Bomar and August Nilgus, a crime technician of Jefferson City.

Tilman Mathis of East Prairie was the only defense witness.

Letters to the Editor

I find your quoting of Missouri Representative Jerry Litton's views on amnesty as tasteless as the views themselves.

It should be noted that it took more courage to say NO to a senseless and immoral war than to mindlessly accept military duty to fight in this assinine adventure. Your paper is appealing to emotionalism rather than to facts, in evaluating this issue of amnesty. One does not need to agree completely with Jane Fonda, for instance, to know that she says many things that are true. Now is the time for true Christians to show they are Christians — write your representatives calling upon them to work for an end to the bombing of Cambodia and Laos and to support Representative Abzug's bill now before the Congress for a total amnesty for draft resistors, deserters, and other war resistors. We owe these courageous young men no less.

Claude Jenkins

Recently, Standard Oil started allocating gasoline and other petroleum products. By allocating, we mean assigning limits to the amount of products we will supply to each of our dealers, jobbers and agents based on their past usage. This decision to allocate came reluctantly after hard, careful study. It seems to us to be the best alternative to assure orderly and fair distribution of our available supply. We think the American public has the right to know the facts behind this decision.

Primarily, the situation is this: demand has outstripped our country's crude oil supply. (Even though Standard Oil refineries are running well ahead of last year. And at practical maximum with available crude.)

This situation was caused by an unusually heavy demand for gasoline early this year, preventing the oil industry from building the inventories that will be needed in the summer months. (The nationwide demand for gasoline this summer is expected to increase by 7% over last year. With demand for Standard products likely to be even higher.)

What's more, domestic crude supplies are short. And growing shorter. And foreign crude availability isn't up to the level this country needs right now.

And so we reasoned that if we started right now to distribute our supply fairly and equitably, we could maintain a steady balanced supply. And avoid any long term widespread runout situations.

While we are coping with the shortage, we want to assure you we are doing all we can to get gasoline to you.

We're exploring for oil the world over. Increasing our pipeline and refining capabilities. Developing new processes that will increase our yield. And importing more foreign crude than ever before—as expensive as it is.

With our allocation procedure and our continuing drive to produce more product we think the first steps toward easing the current situation have been taken.

But we can't do it all alone. We need everyone's help. Industry's. Government's. Yours.

Yours, by conserving gasoline. In fact, if every American used one less gallon every week, there'd be no shortage.

So, keep your car tuned and serviced. (It can increase your gasoline mileage up to 10%.) Combine trips. Form car pools.

And, above all, slow down. If you drive at 50 miles per hour instead of 60, you can save about one gallon in ten.

Does Standard Oil really have to allocate gasoline?

Yes, and all of us may have to get by with a little less for a while, so there'll be enough to go around.

SLOW DOWN
Save gasoline.

Crews pitches I-SC to state

VAN BUREN — Ever hear of Don Crews? Well, it's doubtful that the Hayti Indians had ever heard of the blonde righthander of the Illmo- Scott City Rams until Saturday and now they probably wish they never had heard of the cruve ball artist.

Crews, one of the big reasons the I-SC Rams are one of the for finalest in the AA division of the Missouri high school state baseball tournament, set down the hard hitting Indians 6-3 to win the regional title and advance to St. Louis for this weekend's state tournament.

I-SC surprised the highly favored Chaffee Red Devils and Notre Dame Bulldogs to win the district title and advance to Friday's opening regional bout against the Kelly Hawks. The Rams took 10 innings to dispose of the defending regional champs, 4-1, but had to only go the regulation seven innings to clip the Tribe Saturday and move to the state tournament as the four- team event's cinderella club after being seeded fourth in the district.

Defense and the pitching combo of Jim Noon and Crews has carried the Rams past two of the state's top AA teams and into a Friday date against Carl Junction.

Crews mastered a two hitter, striking out three and walking three during his seven innings of work. The hard throwing righthander retired the last seven men he faced. Randy Gardner was issued the loss, giving up seven hits while fanning nine.

Randy Bohn and Robert Killian paced the Rams seven hit attack with two hits apiece. Both were credited with the games only extra base hits, smashing doubles during run scoring innings.

I-SC scored one run in the top of the first as Bohn doubled and advanced to home on two wild pitches. Hayti tied the score at 1-all in the last of the second but the Rams went back in front with two runs reaching first on an error and advancing to second on Killian's single. Killian scored on an error by the second baseman to make the score 3-1.

Coach Wilthong's rams took advantage of three hits and a pair of Hayti errors to run the score to 6-1 in the top of the fourth. Bohn singles, advanced on an error and Killian doubled home Bohn and Holder. Blattel singled to send Killian home for the third run of the inning.

Hayti closed the gap with a pair of runs in the last of the fourth, but got no closer as Crews shut the door in their face with the help of some fine defensive plays.

The Rams record soared to 14-2 with the victory.

Wild pitch

Terry Blattel falls away from a wild pitch by Hayti's Randy Gardner during Saturday's high school regional baseball final at Van Buren. The pitch allowed the first of six Illmo- Scott City runs to cross the plate and give the Rams a ticket to this weekend's state tournament in St. Louis.

Cards split

MONTREAL (AP) — For a rookie hitting only .201, third baseman Ken Reitz of the St. Louis Cardinals is proving timely with the swings of his bat.

Reitz, only 21, stepped to the plate Sunday in the second game of a double-header against the Montreal Expos and socked a Bill Stoneman delivery over the left field fence.

The blow, with two teammates on base, lifted the Cardinals to a 3-0 lead and to an eventual 7-3 victory which salvaged a split of the twin bill.

Montreal won the first game 4-1 behind the strong pitching of Balor Moore and Mike Marshall and a two-run homer by veteran Bob Bailey off the Cards' Bob Gibson.

Reitz, whose home run was his third, brought the Cardainals their split by connecting off Stoneman after Jose Cruz and Bernie Carbo walked.

Following the hit in the second inning, Reitz doubled to lead off the fourth and scored on an infield out and sacrifice fly.

St. Louis' other runs in support of right-hand pitcher Reggie Cleveland scored in the eighth inning on Tim McCarver's two-run double and another two-base hit by Ted Simmons.

The split by the Cardinals left their ecord 3-1 on a current trip to be resumed tonight in New York against the Mets.

Rick Wise (4-2) of the Cards is scheduled to face the Mets' Jim McAndrew, 3-3, in the opener of the three-game series at Shea Stadium.

ALBANY, Calif. — Right Honorable, $7.60, nipped O'Lucky by a head Sunday in the $20,000 Redwood Stakes at Golden Gate Fields.

Committee to determine amount of freedom of action, Cox is to have

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee attempts to determine today exactly how much freedom of action Archibald Cox will have as special prosecutor for the Watergate case.

Cox, who served as U.S. solicitor general under two Democratic presidents, was called for questioning along with Elliot L. Richardson, President Nixon's nominee for attorney general.

Richardson, who announced Cox's appointment Friday, said Cox will have full authority to investigate and prosecute all offenses arising out of the 1972 presidential election.

He said this includes the break-in and bugging at the Democrats' Watergate headquarters and "allegations involving the President, members of the White House staff, or presidential appointees."

"The special prosecutor will have the greatest degree of independence that is consistent with the attorney general's statutory accountability for all matters falling within the jurisdiction of the Department of Justice," Richardson promised.

He detailed the guidelines under which Cox will operate in a letter to the committee members last week, but some of the Democrats called for further clarification to assure the public of the special prosecutor's independence.

At a news conference after his appointment, Cox said he is satisfied that the authority to be conferred by Richardson will "permit independence to do the job right."

"And regardless of anything else," he said, "I will be independent."

Cox, who will be paid $38,000 a year and be empowered to assemble his own staff of lawyers and investigators, said the job could take a year, 18 months or more.

His appointment is not subject to confirmation by the Senate.

Absorption of county roads to be discussed soon

District 10 highway department officials expect to begin meeting soon with area County Courts to determine which county roads to absorb into the state highway system, District 10 engineer Lionel Murray said today.

The district engineers of all 10 State Highway Department districts soon will begin a series of meetings with all County Court and county highway commissions in the state as a first step in what may eventually become an enlargement of the state highway system.

The move is being made because the counties are short of funds with which to maintain their road systems, Murray said.

Authorized by the State Highway Commission at a recent Jefferson City meeting, the meetings with local road officials by highway department people will continue the long-standing concept of local participation in highway affairs and respond to the almost continual requests for enlargement of the state highway system.

At the local meetings, County Courts and highway commissions in each of Missouri's 114 counties will be asked to select the five roads in their area which they would most like to see added to the state highway system. In asking for the priority lists from local governmental jurisdictions, the emphasis will be toward improved continuity on the state highway system.

Once each county has prepared its "five most wanted" lists of roads for addition to the state system, traffic information for the roads involved and estimated costs of bringing them into the state system will be prepared by the State Highway Department.

In commenting on the proposed meetings, State Highway Department Chief Engineer Robert N. Hunter said:

"Despite the fact that Missouri now has one of the nation's largest state highway systems, we are continually besieged with requests that this or that section of county road be added to it. Of course, the availability of funds and other considerations have veryy sharply limited the commission's ability to respond in an affirmative manner to these requests.

"Funds available and other practical considerations continue severely to limit the things we can do, and certainly we do not want to give any County Court or any county highway commission the impression that more than one or two roads from its list of additions to the state system can be added.

"What we're trying to do in these exploratory meetings is to see whether it is not possible that balanced additions of a road or two per county can be made, such that local service would be materially improved, while the over-all continuity of the state system was enhanced, also."

than just give voters the information about candidates and issues. The press has a moral obligation to call attention to acts of wrongdoing and to awaken the public conscience. It is the obligation of the news media to constantly remind the people they do not have to put up with irresponsibility in government or in any part of our society."

Spradling sees chance of passage

JEFFERSON CITY— Although one no- fault insurance measure debated by the Missouri Senate last week may have raised a few eyebrows, its sponsor, Sen. Albert M. Spradling Jr., D— Cape Girardeau, still believes it has a good chance of passage.

"While it has received a lot of criticism from the insurance industry, it's almost certain it would reduce insurance premiums in the state," Spradling said.

Patterned after a Delaware law, it has resulted in rate reductions of an average 3 1/2 per cent in that state and similar lower premiums in Maryland, which also has no-fault insurance, he noted.

Spradling also observed that of about 1,000 claims filed in Delaware, only about a dozen resulted in lawsuits last year.

The Spradling bill was given first- round approval by a vote of 19 to 12.

Kirkpatrick speaks to press

Secretary of State James Kirkpatrick, right, spoke at the 81st annual meeting of the Southeast Missouri Press Association Saturday in Dexter, urging newspapermen to inform the people about both what they want to know and what they need to know. Seated at the guest table are Wallace Vernon of Eldon, left, president of the Missouri Press Association, and Joyce Peerman of Jackson, newly elected president of the SeMo Press Association.

Says Nixon against investigation

Helms confirms memo

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate committee was told today that former White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman told CIA officials "it is the President's wish" that the CIA approach the FBI to discourage an investigation related to the Watergate case.

Richard Helms, former CIA director, confirmed to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that the statement was made in a memo by his deputy director, Lt. Gen. Vernon Walters, following a meeting between Walters and acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray.

The memo was first disclosed at an open hearing by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., concerning a meeting on June 23, 1972 at the White House involvings Walters, Helms, Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman.

Symington said that in the memo furnished only last Saturday to the Senate Armed Services Committee, Walters reported that Haldeman turned to Walters and said, "It is the President's wish that you go to see Mr. Gray."

Helms said he was in the room but does not recall on his own whether Haldeman used the President's authority specifically.

Helms did say, however, that when instructions are from the White House chief of staff, it is assumed that it had adequate authority behind it.

Helms testified that he did not at the time know about any money that might have been "laundered" through Mexico.

He said he did not understand "to this day" why Haldeman selected Walters, rather than Helms himself, to make the approach to Gray to inform the FBI that pursuit of its investigation of the Mexican angle of the Watergate affair might jeopardize CIA covert operations in Mexico.

Helms said he himself felt no concern about such a point and tried to modify the approach to Gray in a subsequent conversation with Walters.

Helms said he told Walters it would be proper to inform the new FBI director of an operating arrangement between the CIA and the FBI that when any investigations overlapped, the other agency should be notified.

Helms said that his sole concern at the time was that the CIA should be kept out of the Watergate affair entirely.

Helms said he does not know if his reluctance to have the CIA involved in Watergate played a role in his abrupt departure as CIA chief.

He said the reasons for his departure were contained in a conversation he had with President Nixon. He said Watergate was not brought up in that conversation but that the restraints of executive privilege bar him from saying what he discussed with the President.

"Frankly, I wanted to stay as head of the agency to continue to keep it out," Helms said.

He told the committee, "I did not know" whether his refusal to cooperate with the White House in domestic affairs was responsible for his new assignment as ambassador to Iran.

The committee session was abruptly opened to the press and public after Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., said news articles pointing out apparent conflicts in what Helms told the committee in February and what he now says are tantamount to "perjury."

As newspapermen, we ought to be particularly upset about the people's apathy and the consistent attempts of the administration to thwart investigations by a free press.

"The press must do more

5 arrested for beatings

BENTON — Frank Hutson and Allen Lancaster of Oran were arrested Sunday for felonious assault following the beating of John Todt, 21, of Oran.

The men allegedly attacked Todt with a baseball bat Saturday night, the Scott County sheriff's department said.

Todt was admitted to Chaffee General Hospital at 2:30 a.m. Sunday.

Three men were arrested today for the assault and robbery of Sterling Duncan, 48, of Chaffee early this morning. The names of the three men were not released.

The sheriff's office said the three left Al's Tavern in Chaffee Sunday night with Duncan after he alledgedly told them he wanted to go somewhere and that he had the money if they had the car.

Duncan was found this morning in a ditch near the George Stephenson farm near Benton. He had been beaten and stripped of his clothes.

Duncan was taken to Chaffee General Hospital where is is reported in fair condition.

The Sheriff's office arrested three youths Friday night for vandalism after they were spotted sawing down stop signs at the intersection of Salcedo and Brown Spur roads.

They were released on bonds of $100 each.

The course was laid out on the Bank of Sikeston parking lot. Kathleen Williams, 9, of 933 Hawthorne (bottom photo), stands behind the bicycle she won at the rodeo. POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Doing next to nothing brings you into second place.

TERRORISM MUST BE CURBED

In one of his final acts before his ill-fated departure as Acting Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, L. Patric Gray wisely instructed his staff to "research thoroughly all FBI jurisdictional responsibilities which could be affected by terrorist acts," and announced that special law enforcement conferences on terrorism would be sponsored by the FBI this year, at the FBI academy.

"Terrorists the world over know," said Mr. Gray in a message to all law enforcement officials, "that fear breeds terror. And with terror comes destruction of the human spirit and a loss of determination to oppose the sources of terror."

Mr. Gray further pointed out that while widely publicized terrorist acts have occurred abroad, "we can take no comfort in the notion that terrorism is foreign bred. We have our own ugly brand of terrorists. They have taken a tragic toll of lives from among our own ranks. In recent years, terrorist snipers, self- styled guerrillas, and ambush assassins have murdered law enforcement officers in growing numbers.

"With the rising threat of terrorism, the law enforcement profession should take a fresh look at its capability to combat it. Those of us with leadership responsibilities must insure that our investigations, training, and equipment are more than adequate to meet this challenge."

Mr. Gray's words, we believe, are wise and timely. We hope that the new Director of the FBI, whoever he may be, will follow through and vigorously pursue the plan to beef up the skills of law enforcement agencies and officers towards combatting this evil.

Terrorism must be curbed, and now.

BROKEN BODIES —
BROKEN MINDS —
BROKEN HEARTS

Of all the despicable creatures in this world, we believe the most evil, the most foul is the man or woman who sells illegal drugs to anyone, worst of all to young people. How low can a person get when, for money, he destroys the minds and bodies of human beings, renders them helpless and incapable of a useful life, and breaks the hearts and lives of their parents and loved ones.

Murder, to many, is the unforgivable crime. Surely this is the worst possible form of murder, and should be treated accordingly.

For years Warner & Swasey has been urging less spending. Now for once we urge more spending — and effective spending — to wipe out this horrible national disease and the people who are responsible for it and condone it.

There are those who will say this is none of the business of a manufacturer of machine tools and machinery, but what future is there for any business, how solvent is any nation where young people are going bankrupt by the tens of thousands?

—Warner & Swasey

Cold Farewell. In Albany, Ore., the Greater Oregon ran an unsigned classified ad: "If the man who went rushing out the front door of my house the other night without any clothes on will call at my office, he can have his clothes and no questions asked."

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

The honeymoon is really over when a husband can kiss his wife without losing his train of thought.

The only difference between a love nest and a jail is that both inmates get to keep keys to the place.

If you meet a man with one arm shorter than the other, you can bet he probably broke it during his growing years. A break at that time will often leave a shortened arm.

There's nothing less rewarding than scratching a bald head.

The easiest way to make an enemy of a fat man is to pat him on the stomach every time you meet him. He rightly regards it as an act of condescension and superiority.

It isn't true that people talk about the weather but do nothing about it. They did do something about it: they invented air conditioning. The two things that people actually talk the most about and do the least about are sex and taxes.

The majority of people aren't evil. They aren't particularly set on destroying the other fellow. They just don't want him to get in their way. If he doesn't do that, they won't usually go to the trouble of trying to cut him down.

After 50, an overweight woman spends more time worrying about her feet than about men.

Morale is always at its lowest point in a factory or office in which the employes get more fun out of the work they duck than the work they do.

One of the things I've always wanted to see but never have is for a man to light up and smoke a big four-bit cigar during a funeral service.

One of the people I've always wanted to meet is a fellow who as a kid actually brought a live frog to school and put it down the back of the little girl seated at the desk in front of him. This never happened at any school I ever went to.

Men are letting women influence the way they dress so much lately — flowery shirts, fancier ties, higher heeled shoes — that soon some of them will probably start wearing lacy socks with ruffles at the top. This isn't just a prediction — it's a conviction.

An old-timer is a man who can remember when the motto of womanhood was "death before dishonor." Most of the people under 30 today don't know what the phrase means.

NATION BUIDLERS

Strange as it may seem, one of the more inspiring periods of the year is the time when thousands of U. S. corporations submit their annual report to stockholders. Nowhere in the world, much less in communist countries where all productive enterprise is the property of the state, is there such an outpouring of testimony to the achievement of private initiative.

In recent years, a significant facet of corporation reports has been the growing ranks of companies to pass the bench mark of 100 years of operation. One such annual report is particularly interesting. It comes from a section of the country that a century ago was little more than an Indian inhabited wilderness. It tells of the amazing accomplishments of a Denver, Colorado, based electric and gas utility Company that was founded on the western reaches of the great plains where Denver stands today. Ten years after the Colorado gold rush had died out, and seven years before Colorado became a state, a group of business leaders incorporated the first gas utility in the Colorado Territory. As the company's report states, "First came the need, then came the fulfillment, followed by expansion, development, research." And as the report goes on to show, the development of this one company over the past 100 years has been nothing less than phenomenal. And, it has all been the work of private citizens, voluntary investment and imaginative management.

In the light of the records made by pioneering companies such as this, it gets a little tiresome to hear the continued warbling from the admirers and advocates of more government in every phase of our lives. The investor - owned electric industry of the United States has had more than its quota of this kind of interference.

Even the largest and most essential business organizations usually started as one- man operations. Occasionally, the story of one of these early enterprises comes to light in an Address or a magazine article, and we gain fascinating glimpses into the early history of United States industrial development.

A short while ago, the president of the Arixona Public Service Company described the early beginnings of that company and the growth of the region in which it operates today. It is a story of people, power and progress of dramatic dimensions. Arizona Public Service was started by an imaginative Japanese gentlemen by the name of Hachiro Onuki in 1886. The company he build was called the Phoenix Illuminating Gas and Electric Company. At that time, Phoenix was a pioneer desert community. Apache Indians still roamed the area. A dozen street lamps constituted the principal business of the local utility.

In the more than 80 years since Arizona Public Service first introduced utility service in Phoenix, the company, like other investor - owned power utilities, has steadily expanded to meet the soaring needs of its customers. Its territory now covers about 50,000 square miles. It serves 240 communities, including Phoenix, with a population of 546,000 people. During the 1970's, the company's investments in plant and equipment will reach more than $1 billion. Its record of reliability stands at about 99.97 per cent.

A review of the history of a company like this reveals the secret of U. S. greatness. It shows how private citizens through imaginative, voluntary action, under the stimulus of the profit motive, can move ahead toward ever- greater accomplishments -- even to finding solutions to the gravest environmental problems.

BEHIND ALLENDE
AND ITT

While we must admit that we have held no brief for such dealings with hostile countries.

What few critics who cite the ITT files mention is that they document certain facts which President Allende, elected by less than 40 per cent of the vote, has failed to deny.

For example: that the Soviet Embassy coordinated all of Allende's post election activities; that Allende sent a representative to a Chilean newspaper to threaten the burning of its facilities and assassination of those who would not knuckle under; that members of Allende's party travelled periodically to Havanana to receive money and instructions; that numerous agents of Castro's secret police in Santiago were organizing paramilitary groups with the help of Allende's party.

Allende offered the ITT files as proof of ITT and American intervention. Under the rules of law governing evidence, he was therefore bound to those parts of the files which documented his own complicity in accepting the intervention of the Soviet Union and Castro's Cuba. Yet those who attack ITT for its efforts in preventing Chile from becoming a second Communist bastion in the Western Hemisphere completely ignore the case made by the files against Allende.

STATE VETERANS
DAY -- NOV. 11

Under the Truman Day bill passed by the Missouri House and awaiting a Senate vote, Veterans Day for state employes would be changed from the current federal date (fourth Monday in October) to its old date, Nov. 11. The change is an excellent idea.

Congress, in its infatuation with providing moree three- day weekends for votes, several years ago changed the dates of Washington's Birthday, Memorial Day, Columbus Day and Veterans Day. Ever since, Veterans Day has been reated more like a third vacation day than a day to honor our 28,250,000 living veterans and millsion of dead ones.

Like New Year's Day or Independence Day, Veterans Day is tied to a specific day in time or history — in this case, Nov. 11, 1918, when the armistice ending World War I was signed. The date had been traditional since then.

The 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month has special meaning for millions of people. As one observer said, "It wasn't because of any feat of arms that Veterans Day was shifted to October. It was done for convenience, to set up another lost weekend... The general idea is to honor the vet by giving bankers, government girls and your friendly stoke broker an opportunity to knock off work.

Some veteran's groups have the right idea — they ignore the fourth Monday in October and continue to solemnly observe Nov. 11. Nationally, some congressmen, including the respected Republican House Minority Whip Leslie Arends of Illinois and New York Democrat Samuel Stratton, have been trying to restore Nov. 11 to its rightful date as Veterans Day.

Missouri will take a commendable lead if the bill passes for state workers — a lead that should be followed by every nonfederal employer, union and worker in the state.

STEEL MODULE
HOME COMMUNITY
PLANNED

A new planned community of 183 single - family factory - fabricated steel homes is being developed as a part of a 100-acre residential complex near Canton, Ohio, Republic Steel Corp. has announced. The company, in a joint venture with local developers, Raymond N. Malcolm and William C. Mattevi, is employing the concept of planned unit development.

Called the Perry Hills Colony, the housing complex will be zoned as a total site rather than as individual lots of uniform size. Cluster housing is then used to create commonuse land and still maintain individual privacy. The single homes are to be moderately priced and are grouped along cul de sac streets or along looped, winding roads. About 30 per cent of the land is to be preserved and the natural ecology protected.

With the area will be garden apartments, town houses and a small shopping complex. The latter, situated along a major highway, will act as a buffer zone between traffic and residential sections.

The Republic home uses galvanized and pre-painted steel sandwich panels and components, which lend themselves to efficient erection on site, according to the builders.

SPRING AND FRESH

Despite a severe winter the wonders of spring are prevailing and shaping a new landscape and rekindling the warmth of man's heart. It's a glorious season when the thoughts of all of us turn to love. Family picnics and outings are again in vogue. Our family enjoyed one in Oklahoma just recently.

It is that time of the year when windows can be raised and a breath of fresh air welcomed. It is a good time to reflect, too. The gentle warmth of spring air may breathe new life into those long neglected New Year's resolutions. One of those resolutions most important to me is a rededication to applying my thoughts and strength to the betterment of Republic USA. It is worthy resolution that I am sure millions share.

There are so many things that all of us can do, like supporting our law enforcement officers, urging our leaders to strengthen our defenses against our enemies, rededicating ourselves to our families and churches and preserving our Republic and the profit- motive system, the most productive one in history. It can be done under our wonderful Constitution. Ours is a society of freedom and we should give thanks for it.

It is the season when the glories of Spring should reflect in our minds and our hearts. This is a lovely season in a lovely land. Nature's glories transcend all else at this time of the year. HLH

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Vesco's Financial Finagling And Two Presidential Families

WASHINGTON — The international financial finagler, Robert Vesco, believes that the way to a politician's heart is through his pocketbook. In both the United States and Costa Rica, he has tried to buy his way into the good graces of Presidents Richard Nixon and Jose Figueres themselves.

The approach was through their families. In the United States, Vesco cozied up to the President's wheeling- dealing brother, Donald Nixon, whose son has been sharing the good life with the financier as his personal aide. We have been reporting on the strange relationship between Vesco and the Nixons since February 16, 1972.

To gather the facts and gain access to the President's brother, my associate George Clifford posed as a businessman. He found Donald Nixon an irrepressible operator who talked incessantly about business deals and winked knowlingly to emphasize the significance of what he was saying.

A typical remark: "Don't overlook the possibility of trade with China. And with Russia," he said, winking. "There is opportunity there. Someone has to do business with them."

YOUNG DON

Nixon also confided that John Ehrlichman, the deposed White House aide, talked to Donald Jr. about his job with Vesco. Apparently, the boy was something of a disappointment to the family. He had been in the mountains, said the father, associating with hippies.

"That dumb b-----," Don Nixon said of his son. "John Ehrlichman talked to him for a couple of hours and told him he had to behave himself over there (with Vesco). You know, he told him he was the President's nephew and couldn't do anything to embarrass the President."

Just as Vesco sought out Donald Nixon, the financier also zeroed in on President Jose Figueres' family, including his son Marti. A secret CIA report, made available to us, quotes the President's nephew, Fernando Figueres, as saying the family business enterprises were "doing poorly."

"Fernando Figueres, who manages some of the President's businesses, said that he personally has asked to be allowed to resign because of these financial difficulties," notes the CIA. "he commented that all the members of the President's family are deeply concerned with family financial matters and the fact that the President does not seem to be able to administer his business enterprises profitably."

'OBSESSED'

Still another source close to the respected Costa Rican President quoted him as saying "that his financial situation was very bad. (The source) indicated that Figueres seemed obsessed with his financial problems."

The situation was made to order for Vesco, who has been accused by the Securities and Exchange Commission of looting $224 million from his foreign - based investment complex and moving the money to Costa Rica and the Bahamas.

The finagler ingratiated himself with Figueres by helping to solve some of his financial problems. The greatful Figueres wrote to President Nixon last July about the SEC investigation of Vesco, expressing concern that it might jeopardize Costa Rica's development.

Now that Vesco is under indictment in the United States, it has been hinted he may give up his U. S. citizenship and make Costa Rica his new home. Figueres has made it clear this would be fine with him. The CIA has made it clear this would also be fine for him.

WATERGATE WHISPERS: Sources close to ex-Attorney General John Mitchell say he kept a secret record of the favors he was expected to perform for big campaign contributors. This diary, if it still exists, never was submitted with the papers the grand jury subpoenaed ... They may deny it in public, but in the secrecy of the Senate Republican cloakroom, such GOP stalwarts as Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater, Kansas Sen. Bob Dole and Colorado Sen. Peter Dominick have been talking favorably of impeaching President Nixon. Grumped Goldwater: "Tricky Dick has pulled his last trick"...

The White House announced the President was dropping Herb Kalmbach as his personal attorney, but no one notified Kalmbach. He still has the President's legal files ... Throughout all the talk about a special prosecutor, the regular prosecutors went ahead doggedly with their investigation. Attorney General- designate Elliot Richardson never inquired about the case ... Ex- White House counsel John Dean, who helped the White House in its attempts to discredit others, is now getting the same treatment. We have confirmed his complaint that the White House is digging up dirt on him ...

Common Cause has been busy shooting down rumors that it plans a lawsuit to overturn the 1972 presidential elections because of the Watergate scandal. Some members had raised the question, but it never got beyond the talking stage ... William Ruckelshaus, the acting FBI director, may not have been kidding when he suggested to the press that he won't be around for long. He has been quoted by intimates as saying President Nixon "is an Archie Bunker in a business suit" ... The Nixon Administration is so short of talent in the wake of Watergate that officials are doubling up on jobs. Prize for the broadest job- straddling probably goes to management consultant Joseph Wright who is both acting assistant commerce secretary and assistant agriculture secretary, all for the same $36,000 a year.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Inside Mafia:

FBI Has 'Most Valuable Informer Since Valachi'

NEW YORK — Every special "desk" in the FBI, the Justice Dept's Criminal Division and its Organized Crime and Racketeering Section is operative. It would be more than a pity if these were deadened by the political strychnine of gossip, by leakage of files and the chilling silence of informers terrorized by the thought of these forces remaining in the hands of nonprofessional, albeit clean and earnestly intentioned, amateurs.

It would be more than a pity because the Mafia would stop running. And running it is because the FBI has infiltrated it, cracked it and is inexorably smashing it, containing it and averting new bloodbaths.

For example, one of the nation's topmost and toughest racket- busters told a friend the other day that the FBI now has reached inside the Mafia and has come away with "the most valuable informer since Joe Valachi, who broke some 10 years ago."

"We're wrapping up the (Russell) Bufalino family," said this official source. "We have a 'family' member talking, and this is the most significant thing for us since Valachi spilled. It hasn't been noticed yet except in the Western New York area. But this fellow has flipped and is ready to testify in a series of cases. This will lead us to other 'families.'"

The grim reference is to one Joseph Zito, Sr., in the alleged family of the virtually unknown Russ Bufalino, among whose specialties was selling labor peace. Sort of an enforcer.

There are other Mafiosi splitting, singing, turning in and ready to take the witness stand against the combine. Those already talking to FBI special agents who are expert in the use of "the stomach pump" (working with defectors) are turning the vise on the veterans of the old Murder, Inc.- Cosa Nostra chieftains.

In this grim rogues' gallery are men ranging all the way from the late Vito Genovese to the dainty 73- year- old Meyer Lansky. This computer- brained elder of ancient New York killer gangs has survived open- heart surgery. His ulcers act up a bit from time to time and he may have them bleed to prevent his standing trial July 9 in Miami. But the federal doctors say he's in fine shape.

But more about this dean of the prohibition era "Bugs and Meyer" mob later. It's Zito who fascinates the Justice Dept.'s high command. If he talks (or has already talked) about the Bufalino family and its connections, as did the late gravel- voiced Joe Valachi, Zito could lead to such Bufalino friends as the late Vito Genovese, the orignal boss of bosses of national crime syndicates.

And this could lead to what's left of the so- called Mafia national commission. Bufalino reportedly had good working connections with such alleged Mafia bosses as the late Tommy (Three Fingers Brown) Luchese; Philadelphia's Angelo Bruno; and the suddenly amazingly spry latter- day alleged boss of bosses, Carlo Gambino.

Thus, the FBI's organized crime specialists are on the cliffhanger of a national breakthrough. Eventually they will give Zito a "safe house." Others will be encouraged to "flip."

If this happens, the crime fighters can crack the remaining tough mob families in New York. Thus the toughest mob underpinning will be smashed. Already the family of Joe Colombo, who is now a living vegetable, is spilling its organizational guts.

There's little left of its high command. Reportedly it is being held together by a waterfront character, Tommy Di Bella. So freakish is this control he lives isolated in Staten Island (one of New York's harbor boroughs). Di Bella holds title as caretaker only because he is an old friend of the late Profaci and Magliocco crowd. Joe Profaci was so powerful a Mafia boss that two of this land's most hosted crooners flew secretly to his wake in Brooklyn some years ago. True they flew late at night, but one is real comfortable aboard one's own plane.

The FBI also has cracked the old New England mob led by the imprisoned Patriarca, of racket- ridden Providence, R.I. He, too, was cracked by informers. From the inside.

One of those who gave up his all is big Vinnie Teresa--- never actually a Mafia member, he made so much money on gambling operations he just didn't want to join and be disciplined. His father and uncle were inside. So he was trusted. And he was part of the courier system which skimmed all that cash to and for Meyer Lansky--- whom some believe still is the Mr. Big of organized crime in the U.S.--- the Mafia notwithstanding.

Big Vinnie will be among the star witnesses against Meyer when he goes to trial in Miami on or about July 9. Basic Internal Revenue Service charge against Lansky has it that he took some $95,000 in cash from IOUs paid by gambling junketeers who lost their money in London's old Colony Club. This is not to be confused with another set of charges that he skimmed vast sums from the gambling tables of Las Vegas's famed Flamingo Hotel.

There will be other strange and mysterious witnesses. Package all this and you have the first chance to crack the inner structure of the Murder, Inc.- industrial rackets- Mafia combine which has been picking up political power and billions of dollars in the past 50 years. It could end a half century of terror, extortion, brutalizing of labor and management, terrorizing of contractors and merchants.

What I've reported above is the barest slit of curtain- raising possible. All these are on- going investigations, trial preparations, nursing of tough but skitterish informers who actually come from action right inside the blood brotherhood--- not like Joe Valachi whose oral history makes fabulous reading but brought no convictions.

So, only the crime combine can profit from delaying the return to normalcy and professional leadership of the FBI, Justice Dept. and its racket- smashing corps.

Tinnin gains approval to move brucellosis bill

JEFFERSON CITY—Sen. Nelson B. Tinnin of Hornersville announced today that he has gained the approval of the Senate to move the brucellosis bill from the bottom of the calendar for earlier consideration due to the urgency of the bringing the state into conformity with federal guidelines.

Tinnin said the urgency in enactment of Senate bill 291 regarding brucellosis, an infectious, parasitic disease in animals, is due to the fact that the state must proceed from the control to the eradication phase of the disease. The national goal is to eradicate Brucellosis by 1980 and he said the present brucellosis law would make it possible for Missouri to achieve its goal.

However, he said, present state law does not conform with the recommended uniform methods and rules guides for the national brucellosis eradication program. This non-conformity puts our state programs in a precarious position with the federal people and could be cut out of their budget, said Tinnin.

Present Missouri laws and regulation make it difficult to maintain present status Tinnin said. Loss of status would prohibit interstate movements of breeding animals, and Missouri is the number one producer of purebred breeding animals, Tinnin said.

Tinnin says many millions of state and federal dollars have been spent on area testing to reach the present goal and Missouri must move forward to eradication of brucellosis.

It is already a fact that slaughter swine must originate from brucellosis-free areas to move to a state, Tinnin said. Missouri cannot afford to lose her interstate markets just because it failed to provide for the eradication of brucellosis. Therefore, he says it is imperative that Senate Bill 291 be enacted during the current legislative session.

Tinnin said the bill will aid many farmers of the state by permitting a higher payment for condemned cattle as reactors to brucellosis disease, commonly known as "Bangs Disease", which has caused an economic loss to too many cattlemen over the state.

The bill also permits a more equitable payment to be made by those farmers who have their cattle now condemned for slaughter. The payment is made from state funds and matched by federal funds.

4 injured as result of weekend traffic accidents

Four persons were injured in four area traffic accidents over the weekend, according to the highway patrol.

Edwin Krajecki, 55, of Benton Harbor, Mich., was injured at 10 a.m. Saturday when he came up behind a car stopped in the westbound lane of Highway 60 one-half mile east of Charleston, applied his brakes and slid his car into the path of an eastbound tractor-trailer truck driven by Thomas Benedict Organek, 28, of Ellsworth, Mich.

Krajecki's right shoulder was injured and he was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

Frank R. Blaha, 28, of Berwyn, Ill., suffered minor head cuts at 3:15 p.m. Saturday when he lost control of his car on wet pavement, ran off the road and overturned three miles easy of Wyatt on Highway 60.

He received minor head cuts and was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

An accident at 4 a.m. Sunday seven miles south of Hayti on Highway 60 resulted in one injury.

Abraham Moore, 42, of Chicago received a possible broken arm when the driver of the car in which he was a passenger lost control of the car, ran off the right side of the road, swerved across the center line and struck the trailer wheels of a tractor-trailer truck driven by Charles S. Hardy, 40, of Philadelphia, Miss.

Moore was taken to Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital in Hayti. The driver of the car, Ruth Moore, 38, was not injured.

A pedestrian, Nelly Kelley, 59, of Bragg City was injured at 1:30 p.m. Sunday on Route J one mile west of Deering when she was struck by a car on Route J one mile west of Deering.

The car, a small green model, struck the pedestrian on the south side of the highway and left the scene. Witnesses said the car had previous damage on the left side and received damage to the front from the impact of hitting the pedestrian.

Mrs. Kelley was taken to Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital with cuts and bruises.

Senate passes lower loans for disaster struck farmers

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The U. S. Senate has unanimously passed an amendment sponsored by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton (D-Mo.) which would require the Farmers Home Administration to make disaster loans to farmers at 1% interest rates with $5,000 forgiveness if the disaster occurred before April 20, 1973.

This amendment would place FHA loan allocations on an even footing with the Small Business Administration's practice.

In addition, in a colloquy between Sen. Eagleton and Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III (D-Ill.), it was made clear that the 1% loans would apply to all farmers who suffered damage in the recent flooding of thyMississippi River, even those hit by the second wake of the flood which occurred after April 20.

Prior to the Eagleton Amendment farmers in flooded areas of Missouri and elsewhere in the Mississippi River Valley were receiving only 5% loans from the FHA with no forgiveness provision, while small businessmen in the very same areas benefited from 1% loans from the Small Business Administration with the first $5,000 forgiven.

Eagleton pointed out that the SBA was distributing loans to homeowners and businessmen under the previous law while the FHA was granting loans to farmers under the new, and less generous, disaster loan law enacted April 20, 1973.

The Missouri Senator noted that at the time of the passage of the new disaster program in April it was the intent of Congress that loans should be allocated under the terms of the old law for disasters occurring before April 20.

Eagleton said that a study from the Library of Congress Law Division substantiated the argument that it was the intent of Congress to place both agencies under the same rules for disaster assistance.

"Unfortunately," Eagleton said, "that intent was not realized in practice. The final language of the statute, while very clear with respect to SBA loans, left the provision on FHA vague and subject to interpretation.

"My amendment today clarified this once and for all. It corrects an intolerable siutation which was contrary to the intent of the Senate and which was unfair to the farmer."

What's the Law?

The case of the big splash

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Albert was a yachtsman but he shouldn't have been a scuba diver. He took a taxicab to a pier one dark and rainy night, and he ended up in the drink. The driver pulled onto the pier and stopped with the right side of his vehicle only one foot away from the edge of the planking. The result; When Albert stepped out of the taxi, the only thing that separated him from the water 20 feet below was air. And needless to say, Albert made a big splash.

When finally fished out of the drink, Albert sued the taxicab company for his unexpected baptism.

"Stopping the cab one foot from the edge of the pier was pure carelessness," charged Albert in court. "I nearly ended up in Davey Jones' Locker."

"What's he want from us?" responded the attorney for the cab company. "It was a dark and rainy night. Before Albert got out of the taxi he should have looked where he was going. Besides, once he stepped out, he was no longer a passenger and our responsibility. He was on his own."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the cab company liable for Albert's big splash?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that a taxicab company owes its passengers a high degree of care. And, he added, that responsibility does not terminate until the passenger has alighted from the cab and has had a reasonable opportunity to reach a place of safety. In this case, concluded the court, Albert was discharged at the brink of disaster.

Ann Landers

Neighbor doesn't keep clean dishes

Dear Ann Landers: Please excuse the notebook paper but I am writing this letter during study period. I am 14 and in the 9th grade. Your book, "Since You Ask Me," is in our school library and I just read it.

I saw myself on page 102. It was a letter from a mother who lived in Wisconsin. She wrote, "I wish our 14- year-old daughter would walk out of the house and never come back. She was a colicky, mean kid from the minute we brought her home from the hospital. When she was three months old she began to look like my husband's sister who was the town tramp."

Then the mother went on to tell about all the terrible things her daughter had done and she ended her letter by saying, "Please tell us what to do with this girl before she gets her picture in the paper and disgraces us."

Mom doesn't give a damn about me and I've known it ever since I was a little kid. Dad works all the time and is like a stranger. I have a sister who is 16 and very pretty. I am plain looking. Mom keeps talking about how different we look. She keeps saying, "It's hard to believe they have the same mother and father."

I have a nine- year- old brother and when Mom isn't talking about my beautiful sister, she is bragging on this smart kid who is sure to be President of the United States---at least.

I know there is nothing you can do to help me, so maybe the best thing you can do is to tell me why I wrote this letter when I know very well I am---A Born Loser.

Dear Friend: I refuse to call you a loser, because the ball game is far from finished. You are only 14 and this is only the second inning.

You wrote because you were feeling alone and depressed and wanted to unload on somebody. I'm glad you chose me. I suggest that you do some more unloading---on a school counselor. That's what they are there for. You'll be surprised at how much better you'll feel after you've verbalized your anxieties. Please go--- and let me know how it worked out.

Dear Ann Landers: I have this dear friend (I'll call her Mabel) who has a heart of gold but her housekeeping makes me sick. When I go there for a cup of coffee and a piece of cake I have trouble swallowing anything because Mabel never uses soap or hot water on her dishes or silverware. She rinses everything under the cold water faucet and dries them with a dirty dishtowel. It's enough to kill a person's appetite for a week.

Yesterday was the last straw. When I went to the kitchen to get the coffee pot, there was her big Maltese cat sleeping in the sink. I nearly fainted. Our cups, saucers and spoons were on the sideboard with the cake, ready to be served, nothing covered, just sitting right out where the cat could have walked over everything and probably did.

Should I have said something? What about the next time? How can I get away with not eating when I go to visit her? Help me, please. --- Love Her, But . . .

Dear Love: No point in saying anything. Mabel has probably been keeping house like this for years and you aren't going to change it. Tell her in advance that you'd prefer that she not serve anything because you are trying to cut down on calories and it would be a help if she didn't tempt you.

Confidential to No Prude But How Can We Stop It?' You can't. It's beyond your control' If everyone swept in front of his own front door, the whole world would be a lot cleaner. Try it.

There are 128 beaches in Jamaica that are open to everyone. The most famous beaches open to the public are Doctor's Cave in Montego Bay and Dun's River in Ocho Rios.

DAEOC begins 14th nurses aide class

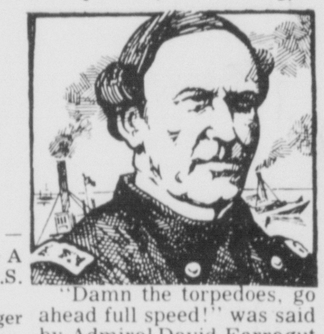
The 14th class of nurse's aide trainees, sponsored by Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation, is now in progress. The students were recruited from low- income families and training fees are paid by DAEOC.

A total of 117 persons have been enrolled in the 14 classes. Eighty- five have completed the training and have had an opportunity to work in the Missouri Delta Community Hospital or nursing homes in the Sikeston area. Eight women are members of the 14th class.

The classes are set up in cooperation with Mrs. Clare Eisenbach, supervisor of health occupations at Sikeston Vocational School, who has helped to solve problems for the trainees.

The percentage of trainees who have completed nurse's aide training has been exceptionally high.

USDA has new food guide book



WASHINGTON (AP) — True or false: A U. S. Grade A Large egg is better than a U.S. Grade A Medium egg.

"False. A large egg is bigger than a medium egg, not better. Remember, size refers to weight of the egg; the grade refers to the quality of the egg," says the Department of Agriculture.

The egg is only one food item examined in a new "How to Buy Food" lesson guide prepared for high school and adult education teachers by department experts.

In another lesson plan titled "Baa-affled About Lamb" a multiple choice question is asked: You can judge the quality of lamb by (a) pinching it, (b) the price per pound, (c) using the USDA quality grades, or (d) none of the above.

Correct answer: (c). "Each lamb grade is a measure of a distinct quality level. When a lamb carcass is graded, a purple, shield- shaped grade mark containing the letters USDA and the grade name- such as Prime or Choice - is applied."

The complete package contains 51 pages of prepared lesson guides, questions and answers, lists of supplemental materials available from USDA and even a crossword puzzle of consumer hints, with answers.

Some of the other lessons are titled, Befuddled About Beef Roasts?, Bone Up on Steak, Cold Facts About Freezing Meat, Do You Know Your Dairy Products and Poultry Problem Solving.

The handbook was more than two years in development by the Agricultural Marketing Service of USDA and also involved comments and recommendations from state departments of agriculture and teachers, officials said.

"Each lesson provides a list of basic reference material, a glossary of terms, suggestions for teaching and quizzes that may be given to students as an aid to teaching," the department said. "The publication also contains a special section on how to obtain more for your money."

Some suggestions:

—"Have students do some price comparing in the supermarket.

—"Have a recipe exchange session. Let students share their money- saving recipes and ideas for leftovers.

—"If students are not familiar with instant nonfat dry milk you may want to demonstrate its use, either by itself or as a cake ingredient, for example.

—"Familiarize students with dry beans, peas and lentils. Emphasize that these foods are excellent protein sources and good sources of iron as well."

"Damn the torpedoes, go ahead full speed!" was said by Admiral David Farragut when one of his ships sank after hitting a mine (then called torpedo) causing his fleet to halt and draw heavy fire from Confederate forts and ships, The World Almanac says. The incident occurred in Mobile harbor, Ala., in 1864, and Farragut's command turned a potential defeat into a victory.

BELINDA JANE DIDN'T HUSH

LONDON (AP) — Belinda-Jane Blakeney spoiled things at a fund-raising "hush-in" at Thomas Bourne School, Berkhamstead, near London, when she politely said "thank you" for a drink. The youngsters were not supposed to speak, and they had "sponsors" who promised charity contributions that would be bigger the longer the children remained silent.

Well wishers sent in more than $120 when they read of the incident.

Budget to get most attention as legislature enters last 4 weeks

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A $2 billion state budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 is expected to get most of the attention in the Missouri Legislature this week as lawmakers begin their last four weeks of the current session.

The session, which began Jan. 3, ends June 15.

The Senate is expected to begin debate this afternoon or Tuesday on the first of eight appropriations bills that have cleared the Senate Appropriations Committee.

The first bills to be considered will be $7 million to pay off bonded indebtedness and a $500 million public education budget.

In the House, debate will continue on the last of the appropriations bills, an $87.1 million expenditure for capital improvements.

Federal revenue sharing money is earmarked for nearly all the financing of renovation and new construction.

The state's general fund (tax money) will pay for only $6.2 million. The state has about $79 million in federal revenue sharing funds and the House bill will use $71.8 million of that.

The House appropriations chairman, Rep. James "Jay" Russell, D-St. Louis, estimated the state would go into the fiscal year with $38 million in its general fund account. That figure was at $20 million this time last year.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond's proposed budget called for only $45.8 million in capital improvements, with $34.7 million coming from federal revenue sharing.

Among the biggest building projects are $6.4 million for a veterinary complex at the University of Missouri-Columbia, $8.8 million at the St. Louis State Hospital, $3.2 million at the Marshall State School and Hospital, $11.5 million for a new wing at the Ellis Fischel Cancer Hospital, and $6.4 million for a music and performing arts center at the University of Missouri-Kansas City.

Among other expenditures are $2.3 million for improvements at the St. Joseph State Hospital, $2.3 million at the Nevada State Hospital, and $2.6 million at the Farmington State Hospital.

In other action, a conference committee of five senators and five House members will begin working out a compromise between the House and Senate versions of bills to reorganize the executive branch of state government into 14 departments.

The Senate will tackle a stack of House bills awaiting final action.

At the top of the list are bills to allow the city of Nevada to lease land owned by the Nevada State Hospital, to revise the law so that the number of school days total at least nine months during a 12-month period, and to raise the daily expense allotment for legislators from $10 to $25.

Tonight, the House License Committee will consider a bill to regulate the state's ambulance services.

An antitrust law passed by the Senate will be considered Wednesday afternoon by the House Criminal Jurisprudence Committee.

Wednesday night, the House Consumer Affairs Committee will debate a Senate-passed bill raising the small loan limit from $500 to $1,000 for loans at 26 per cent interest a year.

The House bill to reinstate the death penalty comes up for discussion tonight in the Senate Criminal Justice Committee.

The Senate plans to meet all five days this week.

Eagleton and Hearnes to hold news conference

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Sen. Tom Eagleton and former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes have called a news conference this afternoon at the St. Louis Press Club to discuss the future of Missouri's Democratic party and Eagleton's re-election.

There was speculation among leading Democrats that Hearnes would announce he will not challenge Eagleton in the 1974 race.

Hearnes and other members of the state party's executive committee have been feuding over handling of a July 28 fundraising dinner and about running the party in general.

The guest speaker at the Jefferson City dinner will be Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington, whom Hearnes supported for the presidential nomination at the Democratic National Convention.

Eagleton, who supported George McGovern, was scheduled to be the master of ceremonies for the July 28 dinner, but he withdrew. U.S. Rep. James Symington will be master of ceremonies and Eagleton plans to attend the dinner.

In a news conference last week, state party chairman David Donnelly said the July 28 affair would be called a birthday dinner for Hearnes, as was the custom during the eight years Hearnes was governor.

Part of the dispute was that the executive committee preferred not to call it a birthday dinner.

Hearnes, practicing law in St. Louis and Charleston, has said he wants to keep active in politics but had no plans to run for the Senate.

Sen. Stuart Symington, a Democrat, has not said whether he will run for re-election in 1976. Symington will be 72 next month.

Fire destroys Madrid house

NEW MADRID— A fire at 11:30 p.m. Saturday destroyed an unoccupied frame house owned by John Gaddy at Mill and Dunn Streets. Firemen were called back to the scene at 4 a.m. Sunday when the debris blazed up again.

Cause of the fire and estimated loss are unknown. Some household furnishings stored in the dwelling were also destroyed.

How to recognize and report a gas leak.

At Arkansas-Missouri Power Company we stay alert for signs of trouble. Once in a while in our hundreds of miles of pipeline there may be a gas leak. Therefore, you can help us if you recognize a gas leak and report it to us so that we can correct the problem immediately.

How to detect a gas leak:

Natural gas cannot be seen and it is odorless. However, we've added a chemical to the gas so that if it ever does leak out, you can smell a particular odor.

In case of an underground leakage, vegetation nearby sometimes becomes discolored. For example, yellow spots may appear on foliage or grass.

What to do if you suspect a leak:

If you suspect a gas leak, report the location immediately to the nearest Arkansas-Missouri Power Company office. Take care to prevent a spark.

If you suspect a leak indoors, open the doors and windows to allow the gas to escape. Call your local Arkansas-Missouri Power Company office and report the leak immediately.

Conflict-of-interest bills die

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Despite the Watergate scandal and public concern about political abuses, the Missouri Legislature has allowed several conflict-of-interest bills to die.

The bills would have:

—Broadened laws on campaign spending.

—Required economic disclosure statements from public officials.

—Set up an ethics commission to regulate public officials and political candidates.

—Tightened controls on lobbyists.

Of the 10 bills introduced this session, eight were in the House and Republicans are blaming the Democratic leadership for allowing the bills to be delayed and eventually struck from the calendar.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond called for passage of strong conflict-of-interest legislation both during his campaign and in his message to the legislature after taking office in January.

"We emphasized it back in January when Watergate was a dead issue," said Charles Valier, Bond's legislative assistant. He said the House leadership did "not consider it a priority item ... just didn't show any interest."

Valier said he wrote several of the bills only to see them given late committee hearings and not reported out promptly.

"I pushed Volkmer on those bills as hard as I could," he said, referring to Rep. Harold Volkmer, D-Hannibal, the chairman of the House Judiciary Committee.

Four bills called for full disclosure on campaign expenses and three would have had public officials file statements concerning their economic interests. A related bill, to require open meetings of public bodies, still has a chance for passage.

Rep. Robert O. Snyder, R-Kirkwood, the minority floor leader in the House, said election laws should be changed to list not only amounts spent but where the money came from. "Candidates are not required to report who donated that money" under present law, Snyder said.

He blames the Democrats, who control the legislature, for letting the bills die. "The party in power still shows no recognition of the public's lack of confidence in our political processes," Snyder said.

Speaker of the House Richard J. Rabbitt, D-St. Louis, said the Republicans are just "trying to take some of the heat off Watergate." He said the complainers introduced no conflictof-interest legislation.

Rabbitt said he's most concerned about campaign spending and even co-sponsored one of the bills to control it. "It's not a matter of trying to shove it under the carpet. We got to it too late," he said.

Rabbitt said at this point he and others are examining bills close to passage to see which might be amended to include controls on campaign spending. "The session isn't over yet," he said.

Al Sikes, who was Bond's campaign manager and now is director of community affairs, said last week:

"Millions of dollars are poured into campaign treasuries and lobbyist accounts to gain favor with politicians. This money is the life blood of political leaders and creates severe temptations."

Sikes called the state's Corrupt Practices Act "a sham" and said both it and the law controlling lobbyists should be overhauled.

He called for a bi-partisan commission, independent of either political party, to investigate and enforce campaign spending.

In the absence of any legislation to curb possible conflicts of interest by state officials, Gov. Bond recently announced he was instituting his own code of ethis rules in the executive branch.

Rep. James G. Baker, D-Kansas City, said although his bill to tighten the controls on lobbyists was struck from the calendar

Eagleton favors tax money used to finance campaigns

QUINCY, Ill. (AP) — Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., says he will support the use of tax money to finance national campaigns—a move, he says, that can remove elections from the influence of large private donors.

Eagleton predicted here Sunday that the Watergate affair could produce new laws of this type. He spoke to graduates of Quincy College, following a news conference.

He cautioned against cynicism about government because of the scandal. He said faith in the American system had been shaken, but Watergate should prove that the system works to rid itself of corruption.

Eagleton said if good people abandon the system it will simply be left to those who would corrupt it.

Asked about Missouri politics, he said it "can't be too soon to get the (Democratic) party together."

He repeated he is seeking reelection in 1974. Asked about reports that former Gov. Warren Hearnes might oppose him, Eagleton referred to a news conference the two have scheduled Monday in St. Louis.

Doctor speaks at meeting

LILBOURN — "Real community involvement begins with persons who are able to look out beyond their personal work, personal goals and achievements and believe that what happens to others is their business," Dr. Homan Wherritt of Kansas City, regional health director, stated Saturday at the Delmo Housing Corporation annual meeting at the community center in South Lilbourn.

Dr. Wherritt spoke about the future of family health services and what people can do to make it operate effectively.

"When you talk about what is needed to make a family health center operate effectively, I would have to say -- first of all — is awareness of need on the part of individuals who are willing to look for ways to change things and make them better," Dr. Wherritt said.

He said that whenever he is asked to speak about the future of health care, he emphasized the fact that the whole person, his family and his community must be considered.

"The formation of the Delmo Corporation was a demonstration of first class initiative," Dr. Wherritt said.

For an effort to be successful, it must reflect the opinion of those it would serve, Dr. Wherritt told the group. "A few years ago we made that a must of federal grants. You predated us by an embarrassing number of years and had consumer representation on your board from the first," he said.

Wherritt said that it is refreshing to find bureaucratic phrases in operation.

"When one adds to your successful migrant health project, the work camps, scholarship program, small loan project and your research and demonstration project in mental retardation, there is continuing evidence of concern and capability," Dr. Wherritt told the group.

"Everything important to the delivery of health services, whether we are talking about family health centers or a system of health care called something else, is actively present here in this community -- in fact, in this room," Dr. Wherritt said.

As decentralization takes effect, the role of the regional office will be strengthened, but the plan is to give the responsibility for health care to the states, he stated.

"The future of any health system, whether it is family health, emergency health, or whatever, will necessitate even stronger ties with the regional office," Dr. Wherritt added.

"The best plan is the one that is flexible and anticipates change," he continued.

He concluded by saying that he hopes that the fruits of research can be combined with a workable delivery system. He encouraged the Delmo Corporation to continue everything it is currently doing.

A short business meeting was held before Dr. Wherritt spoke, featuring reports from the various committees, programs and services.

Following Dr. Wherritt's remarks, area and Delmo village reports were presented. Mayor J. W. Shavers and Priscella Hill, president of the Women's Club, reported on Homestown. Reports were also heard from Mayor T. L. Clark and Callene McWilliams on North Lilbourn, Lavern Beck, Morehouse; Beaulah Montgomery, North Wardell; Mayor Lommie Lane and Carry Pollard, Wilson City; Rodia Nelson, Gobler; Vergie Bullington, Circle City; and Pauline Campbell, from East Prairie.

Alex A. Cooper gave the Delmo directors report and Mrs. Clementine Thomas reported on North Lilbourn's Head Start program.

Freeze Queen is burglarized

HOWARDVILLE — The Freeze Queen on Highway 61, operated by Bessie Cole, was burglarized Sunday night and an undetermined amount of money was stolen from coin machines.

A side door was broken open to gain entry.

2 arrested

CHARLESTON — Two arrests were reported by police during the weekend. Henry Swope, 42, of Charleston, charged with public intoxication, was fined $33 in City Court this morning. James Anthony Hall, 20, of Charleston forfeited a $25 bond for careless and reckless driving.

In City Court Saturday, L. C. Clark, 29, of Charleston was fined $108 on a driving while intoxicated charge; Napolean Emanuel Jr., 17, of East Prairie, careless and imprudent driving, was fined $17; and Kenneth D. Coots, 50, of Sikeston forfeited a $125 bond for driving while intoxicated.

Leslie Achter found guilty

CHARLESTON — A jury of 10 men and two women deliberated only 18 minutes Friday before returning a guilty verdict against Leslie Allen Achter of East Prairie on charges of burglary and stealing.

Judge Stanley Grimm, circuit judge of Bollinger and Cape Girardeau counties, sentenced Achter, who was tried under the habitual criminal act, to 10 years on the burglary charge and five years on the stealing charge with the sentences to run consecutively.

Achter was convicted of burglarizing the home of Bobby Wayne Johnson near Anniston on Dec. 20, 1972, and stealing a shotgun, electric razor, guitar and table cigarette lighter.

Witnesses called by Prosecuting Attorney W. Clifton Banta Jr. included Johnson, Highway patrolmen Norris Grissom, Jerry Crismon and Benny Rapert, Jim Bomar and August Nilgus, a crime technician of Jefferson City.

Tilman Mathis of East Prairie was the only defense witness.

Letters to the Editor

I find your quoting of Missouri Representative Jerry Litton's views on amnesty as tasteless as the views themselves.

It should be noted that it took more courage to say NO to a senseless and immoral war than to mindlessly accept military duty to fight in this assinine adventure. Your paper is appealing to emotionalism rather than to facts, in evaluating this issue of amnesty. One does not need to agree completely with Jane Fonda, for instance, to know that she says many things that are true. Now is the time for true Christians to show they are Christians — write your representatives calling upon them to work for an end to the bombing of Cambodia and Laos and to support Representative Abzug's bill now before the Congress for a total amnesty for draft resistors, deserters, and other war resistors. We owe these courageous young men no less.

Claude Jenkins

Recently, Standard Oil started allocating gasoline and other petroleum products. By allocating, we mean assigning limits to the amount of products we will supply to each of our dealers, jobbers and agents based on their past usage. This decision to allocate came reluctantly after hard, careful study. It seems to us to be the best alternative to assure orderly and fair distribution of our available supply. We think the American public has the right to know the facts behind this decision.

Primarily, the situation is this: demand has outstripped our country's crude oil supply. (Even though Standard Oil refineries are running well ahead of last year. And at practical maximum with available crude.)

This situation was caused by an unusually heavy demand for gasoline early this year, preventing the oil industry from building the inventories that will be needed in the summer months. (The nationwide demand for gasoline this summer is expected to increase by 7% over last year. With demand for Standard products likely to be even higher.)

What's more, domestic crude supplies are short. And growing shorter. And foreign crude availability isn't up to the level this country needs right now.

And so we reasoned that if we started right now to distribute our supply fairly and equitably, we could maintain a steady balanced supply. And avoid any long term widespread runout situations.

While we are coping with the shortage, we want to assure you we are doing all we can to get gasoline to you.

We're exploring for oil the world over. Increasing our pipeline and refining capabilities. Developing new processes that will increase our yield. And importing more foreign crude than ever before—as expensive as it is.

With our allocation procedure and our continuing drive to produce more product we think the first steps toward easing the current situation have been taken.

But we can't do it all alone. We need everyone's help. Industry's. Government's. Yours.

Yours, by conserving gasoline. In fact, if every American used one less gallon every week, there'd be no shortage.

So, keep your car tuned and serviced. (It can increase your gasoline mileage up to 10%.) Combine trips. Form car pools.

And, above all, slow down. If you drive at 50 miles per hour instead of 60, you can save about one gallon in ten.

Does Standard Oil really have to allocate gasoline?

Yes, and all of us may have to get by with a little less for a while, so there'll be enough to go around.

SLOW DOWN
Save gasoline.

Crews pitches I-SC to state

VAN BUREN — Ever hear of Don Crews? Well, it's doubtful that the Hayti Indians had ever heard of the blonde righthander of the Illmo- Scott City Rams until Saturday and now they probably wish they never had heard of the cruve ball artist.

Crews, one of the big reasons the I-SC Rams are one of the for finalest in the AA division of the Missouri high school state baseball tournament, set down the hard hitting Indians 6-3 to win the regional title and advance to St. Louis for this weekend's state tournament.

I-SC surprised the highly favored Chaffee Red Devils and Notre Dame Bulldogs to win the district title and advance to Friday's opening regional bout against the Kelly Hawks. The Rams took 10 innings to dispose of the defending regional champs, 4-1, but had to only go the regulation seven innings to clip the Tribe Saturday and move to the state tournament as the four- team event's cinderella club after being seeded fourth in the district.

Defense and the pitching combo of Jim Noon and Crews has carried the Rams past two of the state's top AA teams and into a Friday date against Carl Junction.

Crews mastered a two hitter, striking out three and walking three during his seven innings of work. The hard throwing righthander retired the last seven men he faced. Randy Gardner was issued the loss, giving up seven hits while fanning nine.

Randy Bohn and Robert Killian paced the Rams seven hit attack with two hits apiece. Both were credited with the games only extra base hits, smashing doubles during run scoring innings.

I-SC scored one run in the top of the first as Bohn doubled and advanced to home on two wild pitches. Hayti tied the score at 1-all in the last of the second but the Rams went back in front with two runs reaching first on an error and advancing to second on Killian's single. Killian scored on an error by the second baseman to make the score 3-1.

Coach Wilthong's rams took advantage of three hits and a pair of Hayti errors to run the score to 6-1 in the top of the fourth. Bohn singles, advanced on an error and Killian doubled home Bohn and Holder. Blattel singled to send Killian home for the third run of the inning.

Hayti closed the gap with a pair of runs in the last of the fourth, but got no closer as Crews shut the door in their face with the help of some fine defensive plays.

The Rams record soared to 14-2 with the victory.

Wild pitch

Terry Blattel falls away from a wild pitch by Hayti's Randy Gardner during Saturday's high school regional baseball final at Van Buren. The pitch allowed the first of six Illmo- Scott City runs to cross the plate and give the Rams a ticket to this weekend's state tournament in St. Louis.

Cards split

MONTREAL (AP) — For a rookie hitting only .201, third baseman Ken Reitz of the St. Louis Cardinals is proving timely with the swings of his bat.

Reitz, only 21, stepped to the plate Sunday in the second game of a double-header against the Montreal Expos and socked a Bill Stoneman delivery over the left field fence.

The blow, with two teammates on base, lifted the Cardinals to a 3-0 lead and to an eventual 7-3 victory which salvaged a split of the twin bill.

Montreal won the first game 4-1 behind the strong pitching of Balor Moore and Mike Marshall and a two-run homer by veteran Bob Bailey off the Cards' Bob Gibson.

Reitz, whose home run was his third, brought the Cardainals their split by connecting off Stoneman after Jose Cruz and Bernie Carbo walked.

Following the hit in the second inning, Reitz doubled to lead off the fourth and scored on an infield out and sacrifice fly.

St. Louis' other runs in support of right-hand pitcher Reggie Cleveland scored in the eighth inning on Tim McCarver's two-run double and another two-base hit by Ted Simmons.

The split by the Cardinals left their ecord 3-1 on a current trip to be resumed tonight in New York against the Mets.

Rick Wise (4-2) of the Cards is scheduled to face the Mets' Jim McAndrew, 3-3, in the opener of the three-game series at Shea Stadium.

ALBANY, Calif. — Right Honorable, $7.60, nipped O'Lucky by a head Sunday in the $20,000 Redwood Stakes at Golden Gate Fields.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Dave Hill shot a three-under-par 69 for the second round lead Friday in the $175,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Open Golf Classic.

NEW YORK — Kings's Bishop, $7.40, captured the $58,000 Carter Handicap at Belmont Park.

CHERRY HILL, N.J. — London Company, $9.20, scored a victory in the $27,150 Hadonfield Handicap at Garden State Park.

Parkview tennis champs

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)— Springfield Parkview won the Missouri state high school tennis championship Saturday, beating out Pattonville 10 points to 8.

Committee to determine amount of freedom of action, Cox is to have

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee attempts to determine today exactly how much freedom of action Archibald Cox will have as special prosecutor for the Watergate case.

Cox, who served as U.S. solicitor general under two Democratic presidents, was called for questioning along with Elliot L. Richardson, President Nixon's nominee for attorney general.

Richardson, who announced Cox's appointment Friday, said Cox will have full authority to investigate and prosecute all offenses arising out of the 1972 presidential election.

He said this includes the break-in and bugging at the Democrats' Watergate headquarters and "allegations involving the President, members of the White House staff, or presidential appointees."

"The special prosecutor will have the greatest degree of independence that is consistent with the attorney general's statutory accountability for all matters falling within the jurisdiction of the Department of Justice," Richardson promised.

He detailed the guidelines under which Cox will operate in a letter to the committee members last week, but some of the Democrats called for further clarification to assure the public of the special prosecutor's independence.

At a news conference after his appointment, Cox said he is satisfied that the authority to be conferred by Richardson will "permit independence to do the job right."

"And regardless of anything else," he said, "I will be independent."

Cox, who will be paid $38,000 a year and be empowered to assemble his own staff of lawyers and investigators, said the job could take a year, 18 months or more.

His appointment is not subject to confirmation by the Senate.

Absorption of county roads to be discussed soon

District 10 highway department officials expect to begin meeting soon with area County Courts to determine which county roads to absorb into the state highway system, District 10 engineer Lionel Murray said today.

The district engineers of all 10 State Highway Department districts soon will begin a series of meetings with all County Court and county highway commissions in the state as a first step in what may eventually become an enlargement of the state highway system.

The move is being made because the counties are short of funds with which to maintain their road systems, Murray said.

Authorized by the State Highway Commission at a recent Jefferson City meeting, the meetings with local road officials by highway department people will continue the long-standing concept of local participation in highway affairs and respond to the almost continual requests for enlargement of the state highway system.

At the local meetings, County Courts and highway commissions in each of Missouri's 114 counties will be asked to select the five roads in their area which they would most like to see added to the state highway system. In asking for the priority lists from local governmental jurisdictions, the emphasis will be toward improved continuity on the state highway system.

Once each county has prepared its "five most wanted" lists of roads for addition to the state system, traffic information for the roads involved and estimated costs of bringing them into the state system will be prepared by the State Highway Department.

In commenting on the proposed meetings, State Highway Department Chief Engineer Robert N. Hunter said:

"Despite the fact that Missouri now has one of the nation's largest state highway systems, we are continually besieged with requests that this or that section of county road be added to it. Of course, the availability of funds and other considerations have veryy sharply limited the commission's ability to respond in an affirmative manner to these requests.

"Funds available and other practical considerations continue severely to limit the things we can do, and certainly we do not want to give any County Court or any county highway commission the impression that more than one or two roads from its list of additions to the state system can be added.

"What we're trying to do in these exploratory meetings is to see whether it is not possible that balanced additions of a road or two per county can be made, such that local service would be materially improved, while the over-all continuity of the state system was enhanced, also."

Grain market

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean futures and new crop wheat advanced the limit on the opening of the Chicago Board of Trade today.

Minutes after the opening, however, the expiring May soybean option, which has no trading limit, touched $10,000 a bushel, representing a gain of 91 cents.

On the opening, soybeans were 20 to 51 cents a bushel higher, with May at 9.60; wheat was 5 to 10 higher, May 2.74; corn was 1¼ to 3½ higher, May 1.96 and oats were ¾ lower to 2¼ higher, May 93⅞ cents.

Spradling sees chance of passage

JEFFERSON CITY— Although one no- fault insurance measure debated by the Missouri Senate last week may have raised a few eyebrows, its sponsor, Sen. Albert M. Spradling Jr., D— Cape Girardeau, still believes it has a good chance of passage.

"While it has received a lot of criticism from the insurance industry, it's almost certain it would reduce insurance premiums in the state," Spradling said.

Patterned after a Delaware law, it has resulted in rate reductions of an average 3 1/2 per cent in that state and similar lower premiums in Maryland, which also has no-fault insurance, he noted.

Spradling also observed that of about 1,000 claims filed in Delaware, only about a dozen resulted in lawsuits last year.

The Spradling bill was given first- round approval by a vote of 19 to 12.
